Early Drinking Age Ups Crash Rate Of Young

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — A dramatic increase in highway crashes involving young people can be traced directly to the 1972 lowering of Michigan's legal drinking age, says a study by a state agency on drug abuse.

The study released Friday is the final version of an interim report issued earlier this year by the Office of Substance Abuse Services. The preliminary report led the office to recommend the drinking age be returned to 21, although it warned that would provide only a partial solution to traffic accidents among young people.

A bill raising the drinking age to 21 has cleared the Senate. Meanwhile, a petition drive has been launched to raise the age to 21, with supporters saying the current age has increased car accidents, produced school discipline problems and made it easier for younger teens to get booze.

Opponents say raising the drinking age will do little to curb abuses, and object to taking a right away from a person who otherwise is considered legally an adult.

The study was prepared for the state by the University of Michigan's Highway Safety Research Institute. It says alcohol-related traffic crashes among 18-20 year olds have persisted at a higher rate since 1972.

From 1972 through 1975, fatal accidents for 18-20 year olds were 27 per cent higher than experts predicted, based on past trends. During that time, there was no increase in fatal accidents for other groups above what was predicted.

If the drinking age were raised, the study said, alcohol-related accidents among that age group would decline. But they might not fall to 1971 levels, it cautioned.

The Office of Substance Abuse Services said in April the drinking age should be raised only if those now allowed to drink can continue; if penalties for providing alcohol to minors are enforced; if identification for legal buyers is provided; and the new law is enforced.

Officer Off For 15 Days

By JIM SHANAHAN
City Editor

Benton Harbor Patrolman Lloyd Hughes has received a 15-day suspension for firing a shot at a fleeing burglary suspect.

Announcement was made Friday afternoon by Capt. Harold Harris who said the suspension was caused by a violation of general orders of the Benton Harbor police department regarding use of firearms.

Harris said burglary is not considered a violent felony and guns should not be fired in attempting to apprehend a suspect.

Officers' guns may be fired against a known felon who used or is attempting to use deadly force in commission of a crime when other attempts to prevent escape fail, Harris said.

The suspect, Steve Wynn, 18, of 783 Pearl street, Benton Harbor, was arrested at Mercy hospital Wednesday where he had gone for treatment of a gunshot wound to the hand. This was four hours after Hughes had fired a shot at a man who ran out the door of a house at 861 Ogden avenue.

Chief Andrew Rodez said it was not definitely established that the shot from Hughes' gun hit Wynn. The suspension is for firing a gun under conditions not permitted by department regulations.

The suspension starts today and continues through Oct. 8. That covers 15 working days for Hughes who is off without pay.

Hughes, a six-year veteran of the police force, was assigned to duty at headquarters yesterday while the department completed its investigation of the shooting.

Lance Hearings Wind Up Today; Furor Quieting?

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate committee investigating Bert Lance scheduled a rare Saturday session today to wrap up testimony from President Carter's budget director.

Lance's attorney was considering whether to subject his client to questions based on a Justice Department investigation of his use of bank airplanes.

On Friday, Sen. Abraham Ribicoff, D-Conn., chairman of the governmental affairs committee, said he was leaving that decision up to Lance's lawyer, Clark Clifford.

One committee member, Sen. Charles H. Percy, R-Ill., spent last Saturday at the Justice Department examining its investigation of how Lance used National Bank of Georgia airplanes while he was president of the bank.

Percy examined sections of a report by Comptroller of the Currency John Heimann on his investigation of the airplane's use.

During Friday's session, Sen. Sam Nunn, D-Ga., the budget director's staunchest supporter on the panel, said Lance should have a chance to see the material if he was going to be questioned about it.

Ribicoff then called a closed meeting of the panel, inviting Lance and Clifford to sit in. Lance stayed about half an hour, then left without any comment.

Clifford said after the meeting

BUT WILL TRUSTEES AGREE?

Benton Spurns Social Security

By JIM SHANAHAN
City Editor

Although Benton Township employees have voted to drop out of the Social Security system, it is uncertain whether their township board will allow the move.

The workers voted 47-41 Friday to ask the trustees for permission to stop contributing to the system, with 19 not voting.

If approved, it would be the first time government workers in Michigan have withdrawn from the retirement plan.

But township board members, who have the final say, indicated earlier that they would support the withdrawal only if it got unanimous support from the workers.

Supervisor Cathryn Sirk said that because of the closeness of the vote "I feel that the board will move not to withdraw."

The board's next meeting is Tuesday.

John Murphy, secretary-treasurer of the Benton Township Police Association, which conducted the election, conceded that with so narrow a margin of approval, it might be difficult to convince trustees to go along.

Murphy said he was a little disappointed that more workers did not show up. "There should have been more out there," he said.

All but one of the community's 32 police officers voted. According to Murphy, the lone exception being an officer who was on vacation. In the fire department, all 18 firemen voted except Chief Ken Kraiger, who also was on vacation.

The township has 22 employees paid by federal Comprehensive Employment Training Act (CETA) funds. Mrs. Sirk said most of the 19 non-voting employees were CETA workers.

Murphy said township employees had been looking for two years into the idea of dropping out of SS and had had several meetings with SS officials from the Grand Rapids office.

And he took exception with those who said the reason the police and other employees wanted out of SS was to give themselves an immediate pay raise by keeping the 5.85 per cent of their salaries which now goes into the retirement system.

"I disagree with that idea wholeheartedly," he said, insisting the real reason the workers wanted out was because they have long been dissatisfied with SS fiscal policies.

"A lot of guys ask why we should pay for two pensions when ours is far superior to Social Security," said Sgt. Richard Davis, chairman of the police officers unit.

He called SS a "bad bargain," adding, "employees have the right to do what they want with their own money."

Davis and Murphy said some other government employee groups have never been covered by Social Security and rely on their governmental pension systems. These include Michigan State police, Benton Harbor police and firemen, and St. Joseph police and firemen.

Marion Hammond, supervisor for the state's Social Security Contributors Fund, said in advance of the advisory vote that once the township quits the system, "we can never again extend Social Security to any employee there."

Mrs. Sirk said she didn't permit much on-the-job campaigning on the issue, but "I'm sure most employees came away much better informed on Social Security and pensions. They've done a lot of reading and a bit of listening."

Nippon Cable System Inc. will employ 50 workers at the 28,000 square foot plant, which will make vehicle control cables. The Medusa Corporation of Cleveland, Ohio, also has approved a $50 million expenditure to modernize its cement facility at Charlevoix. ## Swine Flu Vaccine Hatching Legal Hives

Though Jerry Ford performed creditably in his brief Presidency, he laid one egg that is not suitable even for an Easter decoration.

This was the swine flu vaccination program in 1975-76.

Somebody in the Department of Health, Education and Welfare sold Jerry on the idea that swine flu can jump from piggies to humans with disastrous results.

Good health is good politics so Ford persuaded Congress to fund a multi-million dollar vaccination plan for everyone wanting to be immunized.

Testing of the vaccine for any side effects on humans was so sketchy that the pharmaceutical houses preparing the stuff and the private insurers against products liability insisted the federal government be responsible for the financial consequences of any claims.

Congress accepted that demand by specifying HEW as the claims examiner and paying authority.

Some 48 million Americans took the shots before it became reasonably clear how overrated was the swine flu scare, and the White House quietly closed down the program.

While swine flu remains a problem only in the nation's piggeries the legal aftermath from the immunization program is gathering steam daily.

Some 600 cases of the Guillain-Barre syndrome have been reported. It is a paralytic, potentially fatal neurological reaction.

The danger is present in a great many vaccines and so labelled on the vials containing them.

For some reason or perhaps no reason at all, this warning was not given with the swine flu vaccine. Congress did require physicians administering the vaccine to advise their patients about the risks in the inoculation but did not specify a clearcut reference to Guillain-Barre.

Why are people opposed to having Bert Lance as a public official just because he overdraw his bank account?

The government does it all the time.

Why Not Try The 40-Character Alphabet?

It is a truism that linguists long have complained English is one of the most difficult languages for novices to master. Almost all of its 26 letters take on a variety of sounds, it is difficult to tell how to pronounce a word by looking at it, and equally difficult to spell it after hearing it.

There have been a few attempts in the past to simplify English spelling by trying to use only those letters necessary to produce a given sound. The problem has been the multiplicity of sounds identified with each letter.

But then Philip T. Mitchell, a retired California school teacher, devised a 40-character alphabet which he said would take care of any situation. Using the basic 26-letter alphabet, Mitchell dropped the C, X and Q as superfluous and added six new consonants and 11 vowels.

With his alphabet, Mitchell was able to give one sound to each letter. To those who argued that memorizing 17 new characters would be a burden, Mitchell answered:

"Actually it's so perfectly logical that a man of average intelligence can learn it almost without effort. If we were to adopt this system, we would be able to spell every word the first time he heard it, pronounce every word we say and write more quickly."

Some time has passed since the Californian perfected his alphabet. Judging by some of the products schools have been turning out, the system has turned to an entirely different and less intelligible direction.

Now That's Security

Social security is having three party invitations for the same evening.

have been filed against HEW, the most ambitious being a $1 billion claim by a California parent for the death of his son.

Katherine G. Wolfe, a Tennessee physician, is suing for $3 million. She self administered the vaccine, but seemingly Dr. Wolfe did not warn Patient Wolfe.

Ford is named a personal defendant in a $200 million suit by a Levittown, Pa., resident. He claims a variety of causes, including putting medicine in his blood which he should not have, and the lifting of his driver's license by the Pennsylvania state police prior to the inoculation.

A California woman, age 37, is seeking $10,000 in damages. She charges the swine flu shot has caused her breasts to enlarge to the point where she now requires surgery to return them to their original size.

A Chicagoan totes up the most interesting claim filed so far as concerns the monetary computation. He wants $3,235,999 for numbness on his left hand and side.

One claim type which HEW is standing firm against is the blouse case.

The vaccine required the patient's skin to be prepared with an acetone solvent prior to being needed.

The chemical can stain or destroy synthetic fabrics.

To date, five aggravated women have filed claims ranging from $6 to $13.

The potential for Uncle Sam having to shell out perhaps $2 billion dollars to an estimated $2,500 legitimate claimants has spurred the legal foundries specializing in the product liability trade to action faster than the old cavalry coming to the rescue of a beleaguered wagon train.

One Oklahoma City outfit has two dozen suits in the works.

In New York City some lawyers are organizing a swine flu plaintiffs bar.

A Pennsylvania newsletter publisher has started the Swine Flu Claim & Litigation Reporter. The subscription is $500 for six months to keep posted on developments in the legal skirmishing. He figures its publication should be good for the next five years.

Ludicrous as is this ambulance chasing, except for demonstrable Guillain-Barre reactions, it may provide one good lesson for the future.

This is the question of how extensive government protection should be in possible future mass immunizations.

HAPPY HER WINDOW, FACES THE EAST

Editor,

Here I am again writing to you about the glories of the eastern sky an hour before daylight, on Saturday morning, Sept. 10.

As I opened the shade on my large front window in the living room, which I do early every morning to greet the dawn, I saw a breathtaking sight.

We city-folks are not quite as fortunate as our country cousins in that our view of the sky is so limited.

Although the stars were bright and crystal clear, hanging seemingly very low, on a very black background, they were up half way between the horizon and the zenith. Otherwise, the trees and houses across the street would have obstructed that captivating sight. How much bigger and brighter they must have been seen after rising!

There was Venus and the waning crescent moon in the northeast and in a straight line quite close together.

About even with them, at the upper right hand corner of my window, was that most glorious of all constellations, "Orion."

who after being hidden from our hemisphere all winter has appeared again to grace our morning vision.

Orion! the hunter! or warrior! or the giant, as he is called by some, with every part of him visible, even his sword.

This particular part of the constellation is always rather faint in its misty nebular setting. I can't remember of ever seeing "Orion" in the morning, but later on in the autumn I longingly wait to see that magnificent display of stars each evening, rising earlier and earlier to remain in the night skies until it disappears from sight by being blotted out by the great sun's light, which will be in March. The brightest star in this beautiful constellation, representing "Orion's" left ankle is named "Rigel" and "Betelgeuse" is the bright red star forming his right shoulder. His belt, made up of three bright stars, makes the constellation easily discernable.

"Sirius, the dog star, (or Canis Major) the brightest star in the sky, always lags along with its companion "Canis Minor".

This constellation, which I have watched since childhood, rises now around 3 a.m. I would conjecture, because it does not appear in the night skies for most people to see till November. It moves rather fast across the southern sky at, I think, the speed of the sun.

Now back to my window! Almost overhead are the radiant planets of Mars and Jupiter, looking very close to each other, but millions of miles apart. Jupiter is the brilliant one and Mars, the red one. I have watched these fascinating planets all winter, though Venus vanished out of sight months ago when he decided it was time for him to cease being our evening star and just disappeared from earth people's view, to come back last spring to become the morning star. I have heard that very soon there will be a conjunction of these three beautiful planets, Mars, Jupiter and Venus, so watch for an announcement in the news, and don't miss the chance of seeing a great event which seldom happens. It will be in early morning.

As I write, I am sitting on the low radiator in front of my east window. A soft, satiny yellow glow is penetrating the eastern sky, and the stars are beginning to melt into the ether.

"Orion" moved out of my sight long ago, and is hidden by the huge Oak tree on my south lawn. And "Mars" disappeared long before "Jupiter" which was faintly visible a half-hour ago but now has faded out of view also. Only "Venus" and the silvery moon remain. But what a picture it has been, and what a privilege to have seen it.

Tomorrow things will be different — their position in the sky, and perhaps a cloud covering.

As I left the room after watching for an hour I uttered a little prayer of praise to our Heavenly Father, the creator of this vast, unfathomable universe, and of all life.

Happy (blessed) are they who have a window facing the east! How can anyone beholding such celestial beauty dare to doubt there is a great God watching and reigning over us?

Colleges Facing CIA Question

WASHINGTON — The presidents of approximately 60 colleges and universities, including many of the nation's largest and most prestigious institutions of higher learning, are about to be confronted by an especially sensitive political problem.

These academic leaders will soon be asked by two national organizations to determine whether faculty members, graduate students or administrative officials on their campuses are serving as clandestine recruiters and "talent scouts" for the Central Intelligence Agency.

The schools will be asked to draft new institutional regulations prohibiting not only that practice but also the covert use of academics to aid the CIA in intelligence operations and propaganda activities.

The notion that the CIA still maintains a network of secret operatives on college campuses throughout the country ought to provoke dismay — if not outrage — on the part of those who thought such intrusions were terminated long ago.

But only last year, after a lengthy study of CIA domestic activities, a Senate committee chaired by Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, reached this disconcerting conclusion:

"The CIA is now using several hundred American academics who, in addition to providing leads and, on occasion, making introductions for intelligence purposes, occasionally write books and other material to be used for propaganda purposes abroad."

The committee said it was "disturbed" to find these practices "in over 100 American colleges, universities and related institutions" but recommended no remedial federal legislation because "it is the responsibility of... the American academic community to set the professional and ethical standards of its members."

The committee's public report was tightly edited to meet CIA security restrictions. But at Harvard University, one of the few schools to accept the challenge to clean house, a study committee faced no such constraints — and its report included a chilling description of CIA-inspired invasions of privacy on campuses.

The American Civil Liberties Union and the Committee to Stop Government Spying, a Washington organization headed by Morton Halperin, are quietly organizing a campaign to call on college and university presidents to follow Harvard's lead.

According to Halperin, the academic institutions initially targeted are those "where we have reason to believe that there may be some kind of campus recruiter." The still-confidential list includes these schools: Cornell, Boston, Yale, Columbia, Princeton, Fairleigh Dickinson, American, Georgetown, George Washington, Howard, Johns Hopkins, Duke, Atlanta, Florida State, Tulane, Arizona State, Utah State, Stanford, Ohio State, Michigan State, Indiana State, Nittie Dame, Southern Illinois, Northwestern and Washington Universities.

The Universities of Maryland, Pennsylvania, Florida, Miami, Texas, Colorado, Arizona, California-San Diego, California-Berkeley, Washington, Michigan, Chicago, Wisconsin and Minnesota; Massachusetts Institute of Technology; and Brooklyn, Amherst, Smith, and Williams Colleges.

Nobody wants to deprive the CIA of access to the talent available in the academic world. But there is no reason the agency cannot recruit graduating seniors in the same manner used by other government agencies and corporations — openly interviewing those who may be interested.

Chile's Leader Surprising Man

SANTIAGO, Chile — At 4 p.m., I have an hour or so to talk with the president of this country, General Augusto Pinochet Ugarte. He is not the most popular man in the world.

Interestingly enough, when the military junta took control here four years ago, they built an entirely new center of government, a skyscraper called the Edificio Diego Portales. Allende died in the old executive building, the Moneda Palace, which is still being repaired. The Chilean Air Force hit the Moneda Palace with 24 direct rocket hits on the day of the coup d'etat.

The security at the Edificio is very heavy. I check in, go through the inspection, get in the special elevator to the 22nd floor. Everything here is very businesslike, humming.

For the first time I have a sense of the ethos of this government. High ranking but also young military men move in and out of the presidential office. The keeper of the gate here is a young naval officer with three gold stripes, in the U.S. Navy, these would signify a commander.

Pinochet and I meet in what is the equivalent of the Cabinet room at the White House. It is a modernistic room containing a long table. The table is wider in the middle, a design that allows people at the ends of the table to see without stretching their necks.

Pinochet comes into the room. He is in civilian clothes, a blue suit. We exchange some words through a translator. First impression: I like him better than I thought I would. I expected a grim puritan, and I suppose he is puritanical but he is not grim. His style is one of consistent but not oppressive seriousness. A hard worker.

Pinochet is larger, physically, than the Chilean norm. He is heavier in the chest. Physically he is very definitely there. In that sense he is very different from, for example, Franco, whose puritanism and asceticism gave him an almost disordered quality.

When Pinochet and I get over the preliminaries, the conversation has the following political substance:

Like his Minister of the Economy, Pablo Barahona, Pinochet sets great store on the improvement of the economy. He wants to see the economy de-politicized, brought into a reasonable relationship with supply and demand.

Prior to the military coup on September 11, 1973, Chile had the largest and best organized Communist Party in Latin America. I ask Pinochet how he plans to deal with this problem.

His answer has several parts. First, he thinks that a sound economy will diminish the appeal of the Communists and other leftists. Second, he says that the powerful Marxist influence in the schools will be combated. Chilean education will be thoroughly reformed. I find Pinochet's confidence in the efficacy of education striking, especially coming from a military man.

Finally, the new Chilean constitution, now in preparation, will contain provisions designed to counter Communist subversion. The constitution will, he says, contain "life insurance." And: "Like an organism or institution, democracy must have the necessary means of defense."

Pinochet is very sensitive to the unfavorable image that his regime has abroad. He knows that Chile has been the target of an international campaign of vilification.

Chile is not yet out of the woods, but it has a pretty impressive leader in this much maligned general.

Weesaw-Galien Fire Pact Set

NEW TROY — Weesaw and Galien township representatives have reached a tentative agreement that could lead to improved fire protection for residents of southern Weesaw township.

The agreement, which must get formal approval from both the Weesaw and Galien township boards, authorizes either fire department to be dispatched across township lines.

The Thursday night accord was reached after Russell Seyfred, a Weesaw township farmer, claimed at a Galien township board meeting that he could have cut an Aug. 23 fire loss of some $30,000 in half had the Galien township fire department been sent to the blaze by the sheriff's department.

His farm on Cleveland avenue is five miles from the Galien station and 12 miles away from the Weesaw township fire station.

The fire leveled a large storage building and also destroyed a two-ton truck, hay baler, elevator, combine and 270 bushels of grain, Seyfred reported.

The fire and ambulance departments are dispatched by the sheriff's department based on the telephone number the caller uses in asking for help.

In the tentative agreement to be sent to the sheriff's dispatcher, after formal approval by both township boards, the sheriff's dispatcher is authorized "...to dispatch either Galien or Weesaw emergency service, whichever department is requested by the caller, regardless of the incoming phone number. If no specific department is requested, then the dispatch should be by the incoming phone number or at the dispatch discretion."

The Weesaw township board pays its fire department $45 per fire call, according to Fire Chief Craig Smith.

The Galien township fire department gets no per-call reimbursement, according to Fire Chief Robert Lozmack.

VAN BUREN WINE FESTIVAL

Small Crop Worth Celebrating

By DENNIS COGSWELL

Paw Paw Bureau

PAW PAW — There's both some good news and some bad news about the 1977 grape harvest which is hitting its peak this week.

The good news is that the state's crop is expected to hit 26,000 tons, nearly double last year's disastrous output. The bad news is that this year's output is still less than half a normal year's harvest of 58,000 to 60,000, according to A. Robert Earl, Van Buren county extension director.

No matter what the output, visitors will get a chance to sample the county's grape products at the 10th annual Grape and Wine Festival being held this weekend at the Van Buren county fairgrounds. The festival, was switched from Paw Paw in the fairgrounds located off Red Arrow highway, between Hartford and Lawrence.

Earl said most of the damage occurred last spring when buds started developing early because of unusually warm weather, then were caught in several nights of killer frost. But for those that survived, the early spring combined with a hot summer, has pushed the grape harvest timetable up by almost two weeks, he said.

"Normally, they don't start processing grapes until about Sept. 25," Earl noted. "But this year they're already underway. I'd say the harvest is at least 10 to 15 days early."

Whether or not the harvest is able to continue at its early pace will depend on the weather, Earl said. Too much rain tends to reduce the sugar content of the grapes, and makes the leaves wet, which slows mechanical harvesting, he explained.

While growers will find themselves with less than optimum crops, their efforts should be rewarded with a much better price. Most processors in the area have been offering $180 per ton for Concord grapes, a vast improvement over $100 last year when there was a bumper crop in the East.

By contrast this year, New York, the largest producing state in the Great Lakes area, is expected to harvest only 92,000 tons, after a crop of 135,000 tons in 1976.

Nationally, the U.S. Department of Agriculture predicts the crop at 227,000 tons, compared to 402,000 last year.

The grape and wine festival got underway yesterday.

Festival entertainment the rest of today includes 4 and 7 p.m. performances by the Van Buren Folk Dancers, a grape stomp at 4 p.m., a dance featuring the rock band "Push" at 8 p.m., and appearances by another group, "Jason", at 6 and 9 p.m.

On Sunday, the fairgrounds will open at 11 a.m., with wine-tasting beginning at noon. A grape stomp is scheduled for 12:30 p.m., a performance by a Paw Paw dance group at 2 p.m., "Sing Out Kalamazoo" at 3 p.m., a turtle derby at 3:30 p.m., and performances by the Van Buren Folk Dancers and square dancing at 4 p.m.

Area wineries will also be open during the afternoon for tours and wine tasting.

His Dog Gone 3rd Time; Won't Pay Reward Again

By NICK SMITH
Staff Writer

Fred Pryor of Benton Harbor told police that twice in the past two months his Doberman Pinscher dog has turned up missing and then was returned to him by people who demanded rewards. When it happened again Thursday, Pryor, 36, of 586 Niles avenue, called police who arrested Matthew Lee Osby, 17, of 654 Columbus, Benton Harbor, on a charge of receiving and concealing stolen property valued at under $100. Osby pleaded innocent to the charge yesterday in Berrien Fifth District court. Judge Hugh Black released him on $1,000 personal recognizance bail. Pryor told police that twice in the past two months he had paid a different boy $12 and $13 for returning the dog. Police said the youth they arrested at the Pryor house told them that he was given the dog by a 16-year-old boy who related a reward could be obtained for the dog's return. Police said the 16-year-old will be petitioned into juvenile court if Pryor signs a complaint against him.

Plan 1977-78 Adult Enrichment Series

"Personal Spiritual Growth" is the theme of the 1977-78 Adult Enrichment program for the three local Catholic parishes, St. John's and St. Bernard's of Benton Harbor and St. Joseph of St. Joseph.

Sister Ann Mahoney, coordinator of the Adult Enrichment program of the Tri-Parish Religious Education, said, "Personal Spiritual Growth" is the first goal for the Diocese of Kalamazoo developed through the pastoral planning program and promulgated by Bishop Paul V. Donovan.

Bishop Donovan said, "Personal Spiritual Growth is vital to maintain the authentic relationship with God and His people which alone leads to interior peace."

"Genesis II," a program in personal spiritual growth, will be the first program offered this year.

It will be held on 18 Wednesdays beginning Oct. 5. The Rev. Fr. George Ross, assistant pastor of St. Joseph Catholic church, will conduct the class which will be limited to 12 persons. The class will be held in room 5 of Lake Michigan Catholic high school, St. Joseph.

Those wishing to register may contact Sister Ann Mahoney at the Tri-Parish Religious Education office, 220 Church street, St. Joseph.

According to Sister Mahoney, Paul V. Donovan, Bishop of the Catholic Diocese of Kalamazoo, has recommended all parishes in the diocese offer the "Genesis II" program within the next three years.

Other classes to be offered will include "Adult Spirituality," an introduction to the stages and challenges each person experiences in growing toward God-consciousness. Three sessions are planned beginning Thursday, Oct. 13, and will be conducted by Sister Renata Glass, SSJ, Ph.D., and the Rev. Fr. John van der Boek, OSA, Ph.D.

Also, "The Spiritual Growth of Parents," a consideration of one of the most basic relationships which affect our religious life. The Rev. Fr. Robert E. Lee, O.Carm., will conduct three sessions beginning Tuesday, Nov. 1.

Other programs to follow will apply the theme of spiritual development to the roles and relationships that adults experience, such as, "The Spiritual Development of Husband and Wife; Expectant Parents; The Church Itself (How the church has grown in holiness during the centuries in bringing about the Kingdom of God); the Divorced-Remarried."

A Spirituality Seminar is planned and will be conducted by the Rev. Fr. James Fitz. A historical view of major schools of spirituality will consider such figures as John of the Cross, Theresa d'Avila, St. Augustine, Thomas Merton and Mother Teresa of Calcutta.

Once a month individual programs will be held with speakers and topics designed to provide a relaxed, recreational, stimulating learning situation, Sister Mahoney said.

Create Custom Look For Draperies

It's hard to stay even-tempered when you're got odd-size windows — and your decorating budget doesn't run to custom-made draperies.

You can stay affable and keep your project affordable, however, by selecting readymade curtains or draperies.

Available in a wide range of sizes, some of these draperies don't stretch or sag during handling, fitting or sewing, making them simple to alter to your measurements. Their easy handling quality also enables you to create your own custom look.

For instance, you can develop a formal window treatment using readymade draperies combined with a matching or complementary color valance and a decorative trim. Want tiebacks? Make them from a short drapery that matches your full-length readymades, and get a valance in the bargain. Trim the top part to valance length, using the rest for tieback, and you've got a custom-made window treatment at readymade prices — designed to suit yourself.

When altering readymades, use a fine quality mercerized cotton thread, a sharp, fine needle and the loosest tension possible, to avoid puckering.

To Mark 140th Year

Lawrence Church

A program is planned at 4 p.m. at the church.

Participating will be the choir of the Lawrence Methodist church, Miss Beverly Grant, pianist, Miss Barbara Crandall, puppets, and Dr. Herbert Webber, interim pastor.

The refreshments will include a birthday cake large enough to hold 140 candles baked and decorated by students of Al White in the food management course at Van Buren Skill Center. Also on display will be 140 birthday cards made by children in the kindergarten and first grade of Lawrence elementary school.

According to records, "It was on Aug. 19, 1837, in Lawrence, Mich., at a meeting of 'several professors of religion,' at which the Rev. Silas Woodbury of Kalamazoo took his seat as Moderator, that it was 'Resolved, that the time has arrived when it is our duty to organize ourselves into a Church,' whereupon 19 individuals presented letters and certificates of church membership."

It was then voted to organize a church by publicly assenting to the articles of faith, covenant and practice as recommended by the St. Joseph Presbytery and that the name of the new church be First Presbyterian church of Lawrence.

Elders and deacons took turns reading the sermons at the meetings held in the homes of members until the spring of 1838 when the Rev. Luther Humphrey became the first minister.

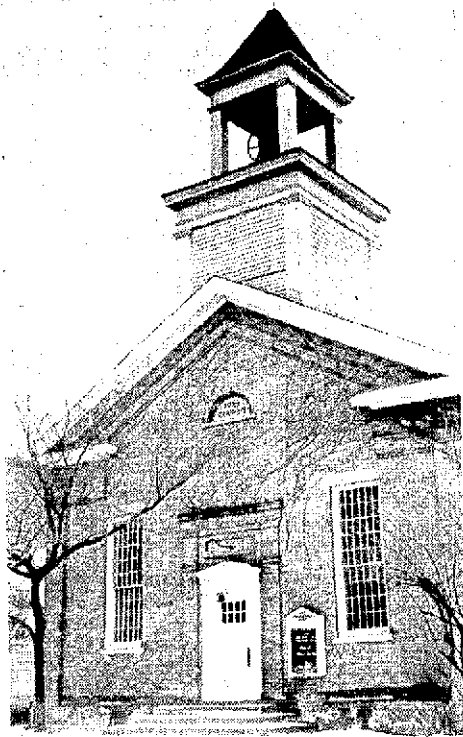

First dues to the church were 12½ cents for each man and six cents for each woman.

On Aug. 11, 1841, it was voted that the church be called the First Congregational church of Lawrence and placed under the Kalamazoo association.

By 1855, the congregation had grown and it was decided to erect a church building, but the building did not get underway until the spring of 1858. When the church was dedicated, there was a debt of $2,200.

In 1860, Eaton Branch obtained the money from Rev. F. Taylor of Kalamazoo at 10 percent interest, giving a mortgage on his farm as security. The church later repaid him.

The bricks used in the church were fired in local kilns and the building was erected by

Challenges Council

WASHINGTON (AP) — The general secretary of the U.S. Catholic Conference, Bishop Thomas C. Kelly, says "the inability of our economy to provide sufficient jobs for our people is a serious national failing" and constitutes a major moral challenge to the country's leaders.

He told a meeting of the Full Employment Action Council that if the current high unemployment rates "were the result of forces beyond our control, it would be tragic enough," but "they result from inaction, apathy or attempts to control inflation through high joblessness" and are "morally intolerable."

The POWER of FAITH

By WOODI ISHMAEL

THE NEW TESTAMENT

No. 17. John the Baptist's Disciples

Jesus continued to teach and preach in the various cities. When John, who had been imprisoned, heard of his miraculous works and teachings, he sent two of his disciples to ask Jesus if he were truly the promised Messiah or if they should seek another.

"Jesus answered and said unto them, Go and show John again those things which ye do hear and see: The blind receive their sight, and the lame walk, the lepers are cleansed, and the deaf hear, the dead are raised up, and the poor have the gospel preached to them. And blessed is he who ever shall not be offended in me." (Matthew 11:4-6)

"And, as they departed, Jesus began to say unto the multitudes concerning John, What went ye out into the wilderness to see? A reed shaken with the wind?... But what went ye out for to see? A prophet? yea, I say unto you, and more than a prophet. For this is he of whom it is written, Behold, I send my messenger before thy face, which shall prepare thy way before thee." Dr. McFadden's parents, Dr. and Mrs. Roscoe McFadden reside in Gobles.

Dr. David McFadden and his wife and their children, Jeff, 4, and Joel, 2, left Aug. 29, for Taiwan where they will spend six years of mission service.

Dr. McFadden will be director of the internal medicine department at the Taiwan Adventist hospital. He will be assisted by three Chinese doctors. The hospital maintains a staff of 20 physicians. About one-fifth of the staff are American or Australian and the rest are Chinese doctors.

Both Dr. McFadden and his wife resided in Pakistan and India as children while their parents served as missionaries.

Dr. McFadden's father served as medical director of the Karachi Adventist hospital in Karachi, Pakistan.

Mrs. McFadden's father, Dr. Arthur Weaver, now of Detroit, was the surgeon at the Karachi Adventist hospital.

When children of the missionaries in Karachi reached junior high age, they had to be sent 1,100 miles away for their education.

Dr. McFadden and his wife are both graduates of Loma Linda university, Loma Linda, Calif., where Dr. McFadden received his doctor of medicine degree and Mrs. McFadden received a bachelor of science degree in nursing.

The family will be joined later by Dr. McFadden's parents who will also serve as missionaries in Taiwan.

They were so bad I considered killing myself. I went to five different doctors. They all said it was impossible to have such agony on BOTH sides. Three of the five suggested psychiatric help.

Therapy - Hah! Dear Ann: You wrote recently that your biggest beef with the medical profession is that when doctors can find no organic problem they often tell the patient, "Stop worrying about yourself. There is nothing wrong with you." You say patients who have no organic

Two years later, still in terrible pain, I went to a sixth doctor who found a tumor on my left ovary. I had immediate surgery and they discovered my appendix (on the right side) was about to burst. That explained the terrible pain on both sides. Thank God I am alive and well, but I lost a lot of faith in doctors after my experience. - Ben There dummy's king. East showed out and South had a problem. He did his best to solve it, but his best - which consisted of coming to his hand with the jack of diamonds, ruffing a club in dummy and leading out good diamonds - left him one trick short when West ruffed the third diamond. South could have made all the tricks after that first spade finesse succeeded by a rather unusual play. He should have finessed spades a second time, and the other way. In other words, at trick three he should have led a low spade from his hand and let it ride. He would then have succeeded in successfully finessing both ways against the queen of trumps.

Ask the Jacobys

By Oswald & James Jacoby Today's hand looks simple enough. South wins the club lead in dummy and decides to take a first round trump finesse in order to keep control of the trump suit. West takes his queen and South romps home with the rest of the tricks. Then why are we bothering with this hand? Because when it was actually played the spade finesse worked since West didn't put up his queen. South promptly led a trump buck to

The correct bid is two diamonds. This cue bid does not guarantee first-round diamond control. It merely makes partner bid a suit whereupon the cue bidder can head for game or even higher.

HEALTH

Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB - My doctor has informed me I need a hysterectomy and I would like to ask a few questions. Will there be any changes in the body other than not being able to have periods? Will I have a tendency to gain weight? Should sex relations be the same except for not having to worry about pregnancy? I've never had a problem.

Will I still get nervous and jittery when it would be time for a period normally? Will I still get migraine headaches? I only get them near my periods. Will I have to be on any medication and if so for how long? Will I have to use a lubricant? I don't need one now. I have four children and have always had heavy periods. So, I'm looking forward to this operation and I'm positive I'm going to get along fine and feel better for it. I like sex.

DEAR READER - With the healthy attitude you have you should do very well. Attitude has a lot to do with how well women do after such operations. If the uterus alone is removed and the ovaries are left in place, undamaged by surgery, you should continue to react as you always have except for the absence of menstruation. The uterus is not an endocrine organ. It does not form hormones. Female characteristics are related to female hormones from the ovaries, and after they quit functioning, the adrenal glands. The uterus has nothing to do with it.

Confusion arises from two facts. The doctor may remove the ovaries at the time of a hysterectomy. In that case the woman may need replacement female hormones, depending upon the amount of hormones and type produced by her adrenal glands. The other fact is that women who need a hysterectomy are often

New Name For Buchanan Mall

BUCHANAN — Developers of a proposed mall that would be located east of here have announced a new name for the mall and the first tenants.

A spokesman for Weatherford-Walker Development, Farmington Hills, said the name of the new mall will be RedBud Square Shopping center instead of Old Orchard shopping center as originally proposed.

Richard Walker, a member of the development firm, added that firms that have at least tentative leases are Schraders Super Market, for a 15,000 square foot space; Ben Franklin department stores, for 10,000 square feet; Michigan National Bank, Michigan, 1,750 square feet; and P&H Fine Jewelry of Niles, 1,000 square feet.

He said that would leave about 5,000 square feet for a drug store and another 6,000 square feet for smaller shops.

The mall would be located east of the Buchanan city limits on the south side of the Niles-Buchanan road, adjacent to Bookwood Golf course.

When the development firm earlier this year obtained necessary rezoning, Buchanan township board trustees were told the development would be a million dollar one.

The mall would have some 40,000 square feet total, based on present plans, Walker said.

Construction is slated to begin sometime late this fall, he added.

A Schraders Super Market at the mall would be the fourth store for the small chain that already has stores in Berrien Springs, Cassopolis and Three Oaks.

Ben Franklin, the department store chain, already has over 2,400 stores nationally, Walker said. Michigan National Bank, Michigan, has regional headquarters in Cassopolis and has 11 offices in western and southcentral Michigan.

BERRIEN SUPPORT CASES

Two Dads Sent To Jail

Two fathers who appeared in Berrien Circuit court this week were ordered jailed for non-support of their children, while another father got out of a jail sentence by paying $250 toward an arrearage.

Edward Patrick, chief investigator for the Berrien friend of the court's office, reported all the fathers who appeared before judges were held in contempt of court and sentenced to two years probation.

Cecil Scott Jr., of 2381 Kurt road, Benton township, was sentenced to 90 days in jail by Acting Circuit Judge Ronald Lange for $1,330 arrears for one ADC child. Lange ordered Scott to find employment within 90 days of his release from jail or spend another 90 days behind bars.

However, Lange said the jail term could be voided if Scott pays $1,000 towards the arrearage. Patrick said that Scott has not made a support payment since February 1975.

Acting Circuit Judge Donald Dick imposed a 60-day jail term on Larry Harris, of Detroit, for $2,000 arrears for one child on ADC, and ordered him to find employment within 30 days of his release or be jailed for another 90 days. Dick said the jail term could be purged if Harris pays $500 on the arrears.

Patrick said Harris has not made any weekly support payments since November 1973.

Matthew F. Bradley, of 4375 Roosevelt road, Stevensville, avoided a two-weekend jail term from Dick by paying $250 on an arrearage of $2,771 for two ADC children. The judge ordered Bradley to sign a wage assignment of $66 weekly support plus $5 per week on the arrearage, and warned Bradley that if any payment is missed Bradley is to spend the following weekend in jail.

Gregory Youngman, of 3155 College road, Niles, was ordered by Judge Chester J. Byrns to sign a wage assignment of $15 weekly support plus $5 per week on an arrearage of $1,376 for one child not on ADC. Byrns told Youngman that if any payments are missed Youngman is to spend the next weekend in jail.

Breast X-Rays Not Advised

WASHINGTON (AP) — A panel of scientists, physicians and laymen has concluded that women under the age of 50 are better off not getting annual X-ray screenings to detect possible breast cancer. The conclusions were announced Friday after three days of testimony from scientists and doctors. The group's findings will be recommended to the National Institutes of Health. Although the panel said annual X-ray exams have been shown to reduce breast cancer mortality among women 50 years or older, such tests could do more harm than good among younger women. "There is no basis to screen routinely under age 50 because there is currently no evidence of any benefits, but at least a suspicion that it could do harm," said Dr. Samuel Thier of Yale University, chairman of the panel. The group also recommended that doctors be required to tell women how much radiation they are receiving through mammographies, and that a maximum X-ray dose be established.

Another Policeman Resigns

COLOMA — For the third time in six months, a Coloma township police officer has resigned from the force.

Robert Cottier, township police chief, confirmed officer Robin Vance, 22, submitted his resignation from the department effective Sept. 30.

Vance, a member of the township force since July 1976, stated the reason for leaving as wanting to further his education and to seek a master's degree in business administration.

In April, two other officers, Gary Wigent and Robert Burton, submitted their resignations for "personal reasons."

Officer Vance was one of three officers commended last month by an assistant county prosecutor for quick work in apprehending two suspected holdup men shortly after an Aug. 6 robbery in Benton township.

Pregnancy Benefits OK'd By 75-11 Senate Ballot

By BETTY ANNE WILLIAMS
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Tens of millions of pregnant workers would be assured of maternity leave and getting their jobs back if the House goes along with the Senate.

The Senate passed on Friday a requirement that employers include pregnancy benefits in all workers' disability plans.

The Senate's 75-11 vote was on legislation similar to that awaiting action in the House.

The bills, which would amend the 1964 Civil Rights Act, are an attempt to nullify a Supreme Court ruling that failure to include pregnancy in disability plans is not discrimination based on sex.

Sen. Harrison Williams, D-N.J., the chief sponsor of the legislation, said it would guarantee the 38 million women in the nation's labor force that they can have time off to give birth without losing their jobs.

Williams noted that two-thirds of the women who work do so because their families need the money.

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., estimated that about 85 per cent of working women become pregnant during their working lives and that 60 per cent of those who are briefly disabled by pregnancy return to work.

"Since women work to support their families, depriving them of such coverage at a time they and their families are very much in need of it discriminates not only against these women but against their families as well," Kennedy said.

Sen. Thomas Eagleton, D-Mo., tried unsuccessfully to prevent the inclusion of abortions among pregnancy-related medical expenses. The bill does not say that abortions would have to be covered.

Eagleton's amendment lost 44-to-41.

Williams estimated its cost at $191.5 million, an estimate Sen. Orrin Hatch, R-Utah, disputed. Hatch claimed the proposal could cost businesses $2 billion a year and result in lower salaries for many workers.

Williams said the law as it now is written has led some employers to refusing to consider women for certain jobs.

A more common practice, he said, is to refuse training or management jobs for women out of a concern that they might become pregnant and quit work, Williams said.

Mildred Joffery, National Women's Political Caucus chairperson, said the vote reflects the fact that women comprise nearly 50 per cent of the work force and that more of them must combine employment with raising families.

The 1976 court decision involved a disability plan by the General Electric Co., which failed to provide benefits for pregnant women.

The ruling reversed lower court decisions and overturned 1972 guidelines by the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission that required employers to treat pregnancy as any other temporary disability.

Social Security Tax Hike Okayed By Senate Panel

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's employers would pick up a major part of the tab for keeping Social Security solvent if the Senate Finance Committee has its way, but employees would pay more, too.

In a break with the past, the committee voted Friday to require employers to pay higher Social Security taxes than their workers.

Currently, employers and employees each pay a Social Security tax of 5.85 per cent on the first $16,500 the worker earns. The maximum amount is $867.25 a year.

For workers, the committee agreed in a formula that would raise the contribution gradually. By 1987, the employee would be taxed 7.035 per cent on the first $33,900 he earns. The maximum tax would be $2,384.86 a year.

In contrast, by 1987 employers would be taxed 7.035 per cent on the first $100,000 each worker earns. The maximum tax would amount to more than $7,000 a year.

The committee also voted to let Social Security recipients earn up to $6,000 a year by 1979 and still receive full benefits.

Now, recipients may earn $3,000 without losing benefits. Above that figure, recipients lose $1 in aid for each $2 they earn.

Many complained they could not live on the $3,000 and their Social Security benefits.

The $3,000 ceiling would increase to $4,500 next year.

A House Ways and Means subcommittee earlier this week voted a similar increase in the amount of outside earnings allowed without losing any benefits.

Sen. Gaylord Nelson, D-Wis., the main author of the plan to raise the so-called wage base for employers, said it would ensure that the Social Security System is free of money worries for the next 75 years.

Nelson jokingly said his package was "less worse than any other one I've looked at."

The committee agreed, by a 10-4 vote.

Food Poisoning Strikes Students

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — About 8,000 children were stricken by food poisoning after eating lunches at elementary schools in Seoul, school officials reported today.

Most of those stricken Friday were treated at local hospitals and clinics and released. Twenty-nine were hospitalized and two were listed in serious condition.

Sen. Gaylord Nelson, D-Wis., the main author of the plan to raise the so-called wage base for employers, said it would ensure that the Social Security System is free of money worries for the next 75 years.

Nelson jokingly said his package was "less worse than any other one I've looked at."

'Watergaters' Seek Freedom

By HARRY F. ROSENTHAL
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. District Court Judge John J. Sirica, who received his first Watergate case five years ago, now faces what may be his last Watergate-related decision.

He was asked Friday to free H.R. Haldeman and John N. Mitchell from prison by reducing their eight-year cover-up sentences to the time served. Without that decision the men would not be eligible for parole until December, 1979.

Mitchell, 64, told Sirica in a petition that he is suffering so severely from arthritis that he needs an artificial hip. The surgery can't be performed while he is a prisoner at Maxwell Air Force Base, Ala., the former attorney general said.

He also told the judge he is suffering from an enlarged heart and called attention to his motherless teen-aged daughter, saying she bears "the greatest burden of the whole Watergate tragedy."

Haldeman, 50, petitioned Sirica that he has become "useless to the world, a burden on society and a great concern" to his family by being imprisoned.

And, the former chief of staff in the Richard Nixon White House, claimed he is the target of a smear campaign by the former president.

Both men claimed legal debts totaling hundreds of thousands of dollars and each said he is sorry for what he has done.

Sirica's long and intimate involvement with the Watergate case began Sept. 15, 1972, when, as chief judge of the federal court, he was handed grand jury indictments of the seven Watergate burglars.

He tried that case and many of the others that followed, including the conspiracy trial of Mitchell, Haldeman and John D. Ehrlichman, the three men closest to Nixon. Ehrlichman, who began his prison sentence last year, filed for a reduction of his eight-year sentence in June.

Sirica presided over most of the other big issues raised by Watergate — the question of forcing Nixon to give up his tapes, whether one tape was deliberately erased and if others were destroyed on purpose.

In those five years, Sirica has steadfastly refused to comment on any Watergate matter because of the possibility that he might yet have to render a decision on some aspect.

With the Watergate special prosecutor out of business and no more criminal prosecutions in prospect, the Haldeman-Ehrlichman-Mitchell petitions are likely to be the end of the Watergate road for Sirica.

Bangor Wife Sues Bars For $1 Million

PAW PAW — A Bangor woman, whose husband became a paraplegic after being injured in a 1975 auto accident, has filed a suit seeking $1 million in damages against two establishments who allegedly served him liquor.

Named as defendants in the suit filed in Van Buren circuit court by Mrs. Joyce Wesaw, acting as next of friend to her children, Shane and Ted, are American Legion Post 93 of Hartford, Barbara Boyd, owner of the Lawrence Inn; and Mrs. Wesaw's husband, Gerald Wesaw, Jr.

Mrs. Wesaw's husband was named as a defendant because of a requirement of such suits, according to John W. Verdonk, the attorney for the plaintiffs.

The suit claims that on Sept. 12, 1975, the Lawrence Inn and American Legion Post sold liquor to Wesaw which caused him to become intoxicated. As a result, during the early morning hours of Sept. 13, Wesaw lost consciousness while driving on CR-687 near 48th avenue in Bangor township, with his car going off the shoulder of the road and rolling over, the suit claims.

Because of a back injury, the suit claims that Wesaw was crippled, and that his wife has been forced to take on the job of caring for him as well as losing his consortium. The Wesaw children have also lost their father's potential income, the suit said.

MARIA CALLAS
U.S.-Born Soprano

SOPRANO MARIA CALLAS

'Opera's Bad Girl' Dies

By DAVE ZIMMERMAN
Associated Press Writer

PARIS (AP) — Critics, performers and culture officials paid tribute today to Maria Callas, the American-born soprano whose dramatic portrayals made her the queen of the opera in her time.

"She was 'the' diva. Goddesses never die," said Paris Opera administrator Rolf Liebermann after learning of Miss Callas' death of a heart attack in her Paris apartment Friday.

The 53-year-old performer fell unconscious in her bedroom and was dead when doctors arrived, her artistic director Michael Gutz said. Her death followed by three days that of another giant in the music world, conductor Leopold Stokowski.

"Callas enters by right into the legend of opera," said Carlo Maria Badini, superintendent of Milan's La Scala Opera House where the soprano made her breakthrough in 1951 with a masterful "Aida" and went on to lead a revival of the 19th century bel canto operas. Italian soprano Giuletta Simonato, recalling the battles with managers, conductors and other performers that gained Miss Callas notoriety as "opera's bad girl," said: "She was a fragile woman despite her character that deserved her titles of The Tiger, The Lioness, The selfish, aggressive and fierce Maria."

Miss Callas was born Anna Sofia Cecilia Kalogeropoulos in New York in 1923, and started singing lessons when she was 8. After her parents separated in 1936, she went with her mother to Greece and made her first opera appearance in Athens at age 15.

In 1948 she married Giovanni Battista Meneghini, a wealthy Milan industrialist who vowed to make the overweight 230-pound soprano the "prima donna of the 20th century" and spent vast sums of money doing so. She slimmed down and emerged strikingly stylish and handsome while sustaining the three-octave range of her voice.

The breakthrough at La Scala opened the world's great opera houses for her, and she made her American debut in 1954 at Chicago's Lyric Theater. She became renowned for her "Lucia," "Aida," "Traviata" and "Puritani" and an extensive repertoire of other operatic roles before singing herself out after little more than a decade of fame.

She retired from the stage in 1965 and returned nine years later for one series of performances before a packed Philadelphia Academy of Music, but her voice was not what it had been. She continued to make records — 18 complete operas and 10 albums of operatic selections.

The single headlight design permits a bigger expanse of grille, making the car look wider, even though it is some seven inches narrower. The standard engine in all Buick intermediates, except wagons and the Regal sport coupe, is a 3.2 liter (196 cid) V-8.

Condemned Man Granted Stay In Florida Execution

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — A federal judge has spared John A. Spenkink's life temporarily by ordering a delay in what was to be the first electric chair execution in the United States in 10 years.

"God has answered our prayers," said Jenny Richard of Anaheim, Calif., Spenkink's former wife, after the judge's ruling Friday.

Spenkink, 28, of Buena Park, Calif., was scheduled to die at 8:30 a.m. Monday. He was convicted of murdering an Ohio parole violator in 1973.

U.S. District Court Judge William Stafford granted the delay to allow lawyers to present arguments Wednesday that Florida's death penalty is irrational and discriminates against those accused of murdering white people.

But Florida Atty. Gen. Robert Shevin said he would press for a Tuesday hearing. He expressed confidence that Stafford would reinstate Spenkink's sentence, possibly as early as the end of next week.

"This state has continued to apply the death penalty as it always had done based on race, with no rational basis to it," argued Spenkink's lawyer, Tobias Simon. He said that the 91 persons under death sentence in Florida had been convicted of killing 109 whites and only five blacks.

Spenkink is white as was the man he was convicted of killing, Joseph Szymankiewicz.

At the time of killing, Spenkink was an escapee from a California prison, where he was serving five years to life for armed robbery.

Shevin disputed both Simon's figures and his contention of inherent racial bias in the death penalty law.

Meanwhile, a Florida state judge in Tampa on Friday refused to set aside the death penalty for Charles Proffitt, saying he found no new points of appeal in the three-year legal battle to spare the convicted murderer.

Proffitt was convicted of the 1973 knife slaying of a high school wrestling coach Joel Medgewow. His case was reviewed by the Florida Supreme Court and again by the U.S. Supreme Court in its 1976 landmark decision that ruled Florida's capital punishment law constitutional.

Proffitt is on death row, but no warrant has been signed by the governor for his execution.

The last execution in the United States occurred in January, when Gary Gilmore was killed by firing squad in Utah. Luis Jose Monge died in Colorado's electric chair in 1967 for the bludgeoning deaths of his wife and three of his 10 children.

Author Tells Low-Buck Aids For Home Heating

ENERGY-SAVER: Architect and solar expert Bruce Anderson advocates window-box collector like this for do-it-yourselfers to put the sun to work in new and existing homes. This shows collector working in the daytime.

By LEE MITGANG
Associated Press Writer

Most Americans don't realize it, but just by choosing the right color paint, using sensible weatherproofing and having windows facing in the right direction, an energy-wasting house can be turned into a more economical solar home.

Many home buyers and homeowners have shied away from the idea of using solar energy to heat their homes. They don't see much sense in building some ugly glass contraption on their roofs at a cost of $5,000, $10,000 or more and hoping the sun shines.

But a new book, "The Solar Home Book" by architect and solar expert Bruce Anderson, puts a different light on how to put sun to work in the home, in language any do-it-yourselfer can understand.

A house itself "is a solar collector, or at least should be designed on the principle of one," says Anderson.

The book describes several quick, easy and relatively cheap ways persons who already own their home can "retrofit" for partial solar heating. It wouldn't mean throwing out the oil, gas or electric heating — the south side of the home, the book describes how the homeowner can make a "wall collector." A portion of the southern wall is covered with glass to collect solar heat and the building costs in just one year.

If he or she didn't farm it at all, "it would take about seven years for the greenhouse to pay for itself — even less if gas prices continue to spiral," says Anderson.

Again depending on the size of the greenhouse, the captured solar heat could carry 10 to 50 per cent of the home heating load.

And if a person is thinking of adding a new room on the south side of the home, why not solar heat it? "If you're clever, you can also supply heat for the rest of the house," says Anderson.

A good start in building the new room is a concrete floor in a dark color. The concrete will capture and hold plenty of solar heat if the windows allow direct sunlight.

The house itself, if built and planned properly, can do the job of heating while reducing energy bills. For instance, the most solar-efficient house is elongated along the east-west direction. And a rectangular house is preferable to a square.

The home builder should know which way the house should be facing based on what part of the country it is being built. Taking into account prevailing winds and sun angles, a house in hot, humid Miami should be facing almost due south and slightly east. In hot, arid Phoenix, a house should point a bit more to the east, while homes in New York or Minneapolis would be oriented more southerly than Phoenix, but less so than Miami.

A house should be able to store solar heat even when the sun isn't shining.

"Houses built of heavy materials such as stone and concrete do this best," according to the book.

The house should also be built to trap heat and only let it escape slowly. The color can be important, especially if insulation is poor. The darker the color, the more heat from the sun is absorbed.

Intelligent use of shading solves some of the summer cooling problems of the solar-oriented dwelling. Building awnings and overhangs and trellises are one method, but there's nothing like trees planted in front of south-facing windows — whose bare branches allow sun in during the winter, and provide shade in the summer.

("The Solar Home Book", is published by Cheshire Books.)

and a few simple projects can fill 10 to 50 per cent of the home's heating needs.

One project is the so-called "window box." A well-insulated wooden box with a glazed top and black plywood bottom is leaned against the frame of a southern-facing window. Cold air from inside the house enters the box, is warmed by the black surface, which has been heated by the sun entering the glazed surface. The warm air goes back into the house.

Depending on the size of the window box, Anderson says it can handle as much as 50 per cent of the heating load. The box is usually removed during the summer.

If there are few windows on holes are cut in the wall to allow cool air into the collector and warm air back into the house.

More costly in the short run, but more interesting, is the idea of building an attached greenhouse to grow vegetables and heat a portion of the home.

At 1976 material prices, Anderson calculates that a 1,000-square-foot greenhouse would cost the do-it-yourselfer $572. If the homeowner then farmed the greenhouse intensively, the food savings and lower heating bills alone would more than pay for

Ladder Safety Includes Inspection, 'Bounce Test'

By HERB ALEXANDER
NEA Writer

A ladder is one tool that you don't just haul out and use with hardly a second thought. You should develop the habit of giving your ladder a careful inspection each time you use it.

Look for excessive shaking in a stepladder. Open it and climb a few steps. Shift your weight from side to side. A good ladder will not shake excessively.

The rungs of an extension ladder may not be as strong as they once were. With the ladder flat on the ground, step and then bounce on each rung. There should not be any looseness.

If a rung has a crack in it, better to break the rung this way than to discover it too late while climbing the ladder.

Give braces and hardware a thorough visual check. If there is any rust, clean it off before it causes deterioration.

Once you have the ladder leaning against the side of the house, climb up a few steps and see if bouncing on it causes an excessive amount of swaying.

Many of the same checks can be given a new ladder when contemplating a purchase. Also consider the differences between the ladders you are examining. Extra heavy rungs and side rails will be found on the better ladders. Rungs on wooden ladders should have metal braces beneath them.

Metal parts should be of rustproof material. Hardware on a stepladder should be sturdy and work smoothly.

Even the safest ladder is a hazard if not properly used. Stepladders should be fully open. Check the side braces.

They should be straight and locked.

Set up your extension ladder so that the base of it is away from the wall by a distance of about one-fourth its height.

Place the ladder on solid ground. On soft ground a board will provide a firmer footing. Metal ladders should have rubber feet to avoid skidding.

When you climb a ladder, climb facing it and have both hands free to hold on. Tools you can't carry in your pockets or hanging from your belt or inside a shoulder bag should be hauled up with a light rope.

Don't go to the top. Three rungs from the top of an extension ladder is close enough. And never stand on the top platform of a stepladder.

Home Yard Fixin'

By JAMES NEIBAUER
Berrien Agricultural Agent
CONSTRUCTION DAMAGE

Most of a tree's root system is in the upper 18 inches of soil because the roots need air, water and food to survive. When fill is added around a tree, it places a "blanket" over the roots and prevents the needed air and moisture from getting to them. Fill up to 6 inches usually will not harm roots.

When more is required in making the grade change, provisions must be made to provide air and water. This can be done by installing a series of spokedike the lines centered at the base of the tree. A circular retaining wall will hold the fill away from the base of the tree trunk. It will also act as the hub of the air system. In serious cases, when 4 or 5 feet of soil is filled in, it will require a very carefully-built drainage and air system to save a valuable tree. With no protection like this, a tree will show limbs dying and bark loosening over a period of a few months, to a one in two-year decline where the fill was just enough to cause problems.

EARLY COLOR

Trees and shrubs showing earlier color than other plants of the same species are sending you danger signals! It is an indication that there is injury or disease working. Investigate, looking for holes from borers, root injury, girdling, or other problems. Fertilize and water to help them along.

Q. — A friend of mine says that finishing the attic is the most common home improvement project. I say it is adding an extra room to the basic house. Who is correct?

A. — Neither. Year after year, kitchen remodeling is listed by the Home Improvement Council as the number one project, both in the amount of jobs undertaken and the amount of money spent.

Q. — I would like to install furring strips across the joists in our basement so that I can later put up ceiling tiles. I expect to use 16-inch tiles, so I assume that the strips should be 16 inches apart. Must I start from the center of the room when installing the tiles or can I start at one wall?

A. — The furring strips should be 16 inches apart on center; that is, inches from the center of one strip to the center of the next. If you don't do it exactly that way, you will find that the tiles won't fit and you'll have to do a lot of patching. The purpose of starting the tiles from the center is so that the tiles along the walls will be the same size when trimmed to fit. Many persons find it easier to start along one wall and go across the room, trimming as necessary when they get to the other wall. There isn't one guest in 100 who will notice that there are full tiles on one side and partial tiles on the other.

Q. — The wall in our bedroom has a small crack. The wall is made of gypsum board. In patching the crack, is it necessary to use perforated tape the way you do to cover the seams when the panels are installed?

A. — No. Apply a small amount of patching plaster to the crack, pressing it into place. Smooth with a putty knife and allow to dry. If there is any shrinkage, apply more patching material and smooth again. When dry, sand slightly until the area is level with the adjacent surface.

Hard Water A 'Villain'

LOMBARD, Ill. (AP) — A waste of gas and a significant increase in home fuel bills is blamed on some water heaters by the Water Quality Association. The heaters, it is charged, are rendered inefficient because of lime deposits caused by hard water.

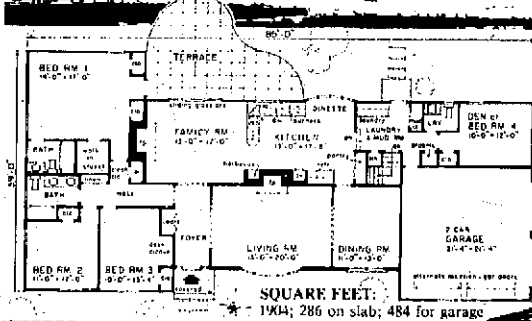

"When a heater is encrusted by hard water scale, it's like trying to heat a kettle with a firebrick under it," says Richard Weickart, technical director of the association.

"Instead of heat going into the water, it goes up the flue, and flue temperatures may rise 150 degrees. The only cure is to clean the heater tank with chemical products designed for the purpose, or install a water softener."

FINE RANCH STYLING

By AUGUSTUS SUGLIA, Architect

HOUSE DESIGN 3877: This appealing ranch-style home is well planned to suit today's life styles. The informal heart of the home—family room with fireplace, kitchen with dinette—is combined in one big area with access to the rear terrace. Three bedrooms and two baths have a private location at left. Note master bedroom's access to terrace. Living and dining rooms are at front. Laundry, lavatory and den are behind the two-car garage. There's a full basement reached via stair from laundry room.

TWO-CAR GARAGE PLAN: This is much more than a two-car garage because the loft can be converted into an efficiency apartment. It has a separate entry. Note, too, that dormer windows across front and rear do not infringe on floor space. Stone across the front adds to the rustic look.

Cookie-Muncher Risks $25 Fine

OCEAN BEACH, N.Y. (AP) — One defendant is charged with eating a chocolate-chip cookie, the other a crumb cake. The case may pose a sticky constitutional question.

Larry Wallick, 18, and Ruth Bushnell, 25, were to answer charges today of violating this posh resort community's ban on eating or drinking in public. They faced fines of $25 each.

They were ticketed Aug. 13 as they sat on a curb in front of a bakery, nibbling on their cookies and cake. They declined the village constable's invitation to eat their snack inside the bakery.

Rachel Doering, a first-grade teacher and owner of the bakery, received a summons for "negligently causing people to eat in the streets." She posted $10 bail each for the defendants and later in the summer had the case against her dismissed.

"I have had the police stand outside my door watching ... They actually chase down kids eating a cookie and tell them to go home and eat it, but they let the ice cream cones go," she said.

Why ice cream? "The ice cream cone is such an American institution that we had to turn the other way on that one," said village trustee Warner Danby.

"Once you allow a cookie, what's wrong with a beer? Where do you draw the line?" The trustees say the ordinance is designed to prevent rowdiness as well as clutter. "People used to go in the streets with drinks in their hands and become unruly or carry food on the beach and leave greasy pipes in the street," Danby said.

Police arrested a man recently for holding a glass of water in public. The owners of stray dogs and those who neglected to pick up after their pets with a plastic or metal scoop also were fined.

Some merchants object to the law because they say it hurts business, and the New York Civil Liberties Union has said it may challenge the law's constitutionality.

"A municipality is allowed to make regulations to prevent littering, for example, but this is over-broad," said Linda Margolin, an attorney for the Suffolk County chapter of the Civil Liberties Union.

"It effectively prohibits any person who does not own property from consuming any food in the village unless they go into a restaurant for the entire meal," she said.

She said the ordinance also discriminates in favor of ice cream eaters.

Village Prosecutor Bennett L. Gershan, who is trying the cases, concedes he questions whether such a broad ordinance is constitutional.

Judge Awards Grieving Couple $55,000

MIAMI (AP) — A federal judge has awarded $55,000 to a couple whose baby died on delivery at an Air Force hospital that failed to provide adequate care to the mother.

U.S. District Court Judge C. Clyde Atkins on Friday awarded $50,000 to the mother, Michele Pope, "for damages done to her" and $5,000 to the father, Army Sgt. James M. Pope.

Atkins said he was "not setting a value on the life of the unborn child."

The Air Force, which admitted it was negligent in treating the mother at Homestead Air Force Base, had offered a $15,000 settlement. The Papes said that was not enough for the emotional damage of the death and subsequent breakup of their marriage.

"I just can't say anything," said Mrs. Pope after the judge read the verdict.

Mrs. Pope's attorney, David J. Halbert, had asked the court for a minimum of $250,000.

"This type of compensation, the $15,000 offer, is something someone gets for a bad neck, a bad back, or whiplash," Halbert told the court.

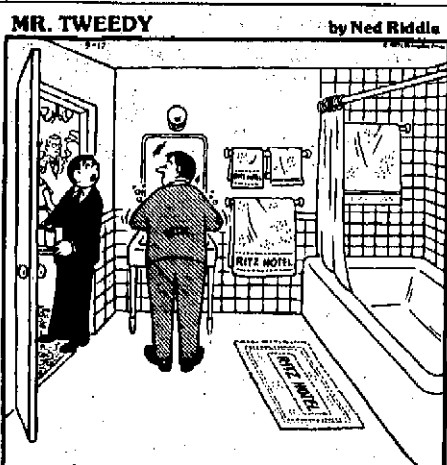

The Pope baby, Jessica Marie, died after the mother entered the base hospital near the Veterans Day weekend in 1973, and the limited staff failed to follow proper prenatal procedures. The Air Force conceded the baby was alive and well in the womb and would have been "delivered alive and healthy."

The couple filed suit in July.

Leaves May Be, Uh, Dull

EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Fall is coming early to Michigan this year, and it won't be quite the technical marvel it sometimes is, say specialists at Michigan State University. Leaves should develop their full fall color 10 to 14 days earlier than normal, and a lack of moisture could leave the colors — well, dull.

According to Mel Koelling, an extension forestry specialist, the yellow and orange colors of fall are created when the trees stop producing chlorophyll, a green pigment. Koelling explained, while the brilliant red of maple is manufactured from sugars in the leaf, dry conditions interfere with chlorophyll and sugar production and affect the pigmentation. Drought conditions in parts of the state this year have caused some trees to skip the fall stage entirely, he said.

Search For Pair Dropped

The U.S. Coast Guard last night suspended the search for two Beverly Shores, Ind., men missing in Lake Michigan since Tuesday.

The Coast Guard office in Chicago said the search had been called off by district headquarters in Cleveland. The area under search was between St. Joseph and Michigan City, Ind.

Chief William Johnson of the St. Joseph station said boats rejoined the search yesterday morning after the station was first informed yesterday's hunt would be conducted only by air.

Steve Peuk, 22, and Michael Down, 23, disappeared Tuesday when they left a boat that had run out of gas to swim to shore. They were wearing life preservers.

Three companions remaining in the boat drifted ashore early Wednesday near Grand Beach in Berrien county after being on the lake 56 hours. The three are from Michigan City.

TRUCK CRASHES GARAGE, TAKES A DIVE: Mr. and Mrs. George Fuska, 2588 West John Beers road, Stevensville, inspect damage to their garage, caused when struck by pickup truck that continued into Hickory creek. Deputy Sheriff Dean Kugle said neither driver of truck, Vernon L. Kugle, 31, of 1804

North Sierra way, Stevensville, nor his son, Vernon Jr., a passenger, were injured in accident Friday morning. Dean Kugle said he issued ticket to his cousin, Vernon, for driving too fast for conditions (wet pavement and going 40 in 25 zone).

Driver Kugle told Deputy Kugle truck slid, hit corner of garage, went through shrubs and down embankment into creek. Accident occurred near Village Square shopping center. (Staff photos)

Soviet teacher Natasha Alekseevna Lankina, the group's interpreter, voiced surprise that American workers "must pay money to drink water." "We have it free," she said. The group's tour guide explained that the liquid was not water, but a lemon-flavor soft drink.

Lance Hearings Wind Up Today

that Ribicoff was giving him a copy of notes taken by members of the committee staff on the Justice Department files.

Ribicoff said he would let Clifford know this morning whether Lance would answer questions about it.

Ribicoff said he would abide by Clifford's decision. He said Justice Department officials told him they would not object to questions based on the Helmann report.

Under questioning by Nunn earlier Friday, Lance said his use of a bank airplane to attend social events and political affairs was a justifiable business expense because he was "out to develop business at each and every opportunity."

Lance faced tough questions Friday on his alleged attempt to delay a routine FBI check of his past.

Sen. Charles McC. Mathias, R-Md., charged that Lance several times failed to sign papers giving the FBI permission to investigate him after he was nominated as budget director by Carter.

His police weakening for the first time in the hearings, Lance said that, "Nobody ever told me there was any difficulty at all in getting any sort of paper signed by me."

"As soon as it was put before me, I signed it," he told the panel.

One committee member charged Lance was a victim of the kind of smear tactics often attributed to the late Sen. Joseph McCarthy.

"In the 1950s, we had guilt by association," Sen. Thomas Eagleton, D-Mo., said. "In 1977 we have guilt by accumulation."

Percy, Lance's most aggressive questioner in the hearings, sharply challenged the budget director's defense against a charge, first reported by The Associated Press, that he pledged the same stock as collateral for two different loans at the same time.

"What happens to you is a special unique case; that's why there is so much resentment against the rich and the powerful," Percy, a millionaire himself, told Lance. "If somebody did that with an automobile loan, the bank would take his auto."

A report issued Aug. 18 by Helmann said Lance obtained a loan from the Chemical Bank of New York.

The collateral he used for the loan consisted of 14,657 shares that he had gotten as a dividend on National Bank of Georgia stock and which he had already put up as collateral for a $2.6-million loan from Manufacturers Hanover Trust Co.

Percy maintained that the note Lance gave Manufacturers Hanover Trust Co. obligated him to deliver to that bank on demand any dividend he received on the stock while the loan was outstanding.

Manufacturers Hanover did call for the stock dividend, but Lance resisted turning it over, arguing that the original shares were adequate collateral. He pictured the disagreement with Manufacturers Hanover as a negotiating process arising out of their differences over how the value of the original stock should be computed.

When they were unable to reach agreement, he said, he repaid the loan. Lance defended the bank's liberal overdraft policy, saying it was common in small Georgia towns.

"We knew when a wife was sick, when children were born, that's the kind of community it was," he said.

Sen. John Glenn, D-Ohio, a member of the committee, said he thinks it has an obligation to weigh each charge against Lance and his response.

"I think we've got a lot of work to do," he told the hearing. Meanwhile, President Carter told a group of journalists he was so far pleased with the hearings. He said he thinks Lance's answers to the panel's questions have "certainly enhanced his position."

And Presidential Press Secretary Jody Powell said telephone calls to the White House since Lance began his Senate testimony back him 245 to 70. Earlier this week, Powell said the calls were running against Lance by roughly a 2-to-1 margin.

SPEAKS OUT: Sen. Thomas F. Eagleton, D-Mo., a member of the Senate Governmental Affairs Committee, emphasizes a point during the panel's session Friday. The committee is examining the financial affairs of Budget Director Bert Lance and Eagleton made a long statement about the actions of various members of the committee. (AP Wirephoto)

Engine Derails, Fuel Spills

NEW BUFFALO — Efforts to clean up fuel oil that spilled from a derailed train engine fuel tank here early today were scheduled to get underway late this morning, according to New Buffalo police.

Police said the fuel tank was ruptured about 8 a.m. today when a Chesapeake & Ohio freight train engine derailed in the railroad's switching yard off Washington street. The leaking oil was spilling into nearby drainage ditches and cleanup efforts were ordered to prevent it from making its way into Lake Michigan, police said.

A Plainwell cleanup service and the State Department of Natural Resources were called in, police said.

Police said the engine was not pulling any freight cars when it derailed. There were no injuries.

POLICE ROUNDUP

Two Tell Troopers Of Highway Stickup

State police of the Benton Harbor post said two men reported being robbed at gunpoint "when their auto was stopped by another vehicle on Townline road, just east of Pipestone road in Benton township early this morning."

Trooper Gary Truskowski said one of the victims was cut about the head when allegedly pistol whipped, and both said a woman they met earlier and were riding around with left with the assailants.

Treated and released from Mercy hospital was Herman Pollard, 36, of 687 Madison street, Benton Harbor. Truskowski said Pollard reported being robbed of about $22.

Reported unhurt was Alphonso Fields, 142 Cornelia, Benton township, who said an undetermined small amount of money was taken from his wallet. He said the assailants then threw the wallet into a field.

Truskowski said Fields reported driving west on Townline road when a compact silver-colored auto crossed the road and stopped in front, forcing Fields to stop.

Fields told the trooper two men, one with a handgun, the other with a sawed-off shotgun, pulled Fields and Pollard from the auto and forced them to the rear of the Fields auto. The pair fled in the compact auto, and Fields summoned help from a CB radio in his auto, Truskowski said.

According to the trooper, the woman apparently left voluntarily with the assailants. She was known to the victims only as "Brenda," the trooper said.

Benton Harbor police said Michael Howard, 19, of 1078 Bishop, reported at 8:15 p.m. Friday that he had just been stabbed in the right leg in Union park. He was not hospitalized, police indicated.

Police said Howard said he was talking to another man about a quarrel the two had earlier. No arrest was made, pending further investigation, police said.

St. Joseph police Friday investigated the reported theft of a 3 by 18-inch street sign saying "wrong way," from Ridgeway at Virginia court, and of three small shoulder indicators along Upton drive. Total value was listed at $26.33.

Fruitport Topples Tigers Again, 30-20

By JACK WALKDEN
Staff Sports Writer
FRUITPORT — The Fruitport jinx struck again here Friday night.
Striking with sudden swiftness, the Trojans rolled over Benton Harbor 30-20, leaving Tiger coach Paul Bergen shell-shocked.
"They must have a hex on us," Bergen moaned. "Next year I'm going to get together with all of the witches and goblins I know before we play them. I don't know what (coach Tom) Holden is, but I'm going to bring a silver spike with me."

Indeed, it must seem that way to Bergen. The Tigers, now 1-1, have never beaten Fruitport in four meetings. And during the first quarter Bergen found out why. All the Trojans did was roll up 195 yards in the initial period on a Tiger defense which had limited Kalamazoo Central to just 79 yards in the entire opener.

Most of the yardage came on three quick passes. Quarterback Steve O'Brien connected with tight end Mike Hall for three first-quarter touchdown strikes. The TD plays covered 47, 26 and 87 yards and gave the Trojans a 22-0 lead after the first quarter. The game was never in doubt after that.

The Tigers cut the Fruitport lead to just 23-14 late in the third quarter on a 10-yard scoring jaunt by Maverick Burton. But just as quickly, Fruitport put the game out of reach when Doug Hinkle ran back the ensuing kickoff 82 yards for a touchdown.

That's no excuse. "We went into the game with the idea of stopping their fullback. We forced them to do that, but they beat us with those little dump passes."

Hines, a three-year starter at cornerback, missed the game with a knee injury. Even in defeat, Bergen did have some bright spots. Burton was brilliant in the losing effort, rushing for 198 yards in 23 carries. Burton scored twice, with a six-yard scoring run in addition to his 10-yard jaunt. "Maverick's running was tremendous," Bergen said.

And the left side of our offensive line (Gene Eddy, Richard Clifton, Jerry Pryor and John Bailey) did an outstanding job of opening up the left side."

And the Tiger defense did limit Fruitport to only 25 yards in the final three quarters. But by then it was too late. "I'm very proud of the way we came back," Bergen said. "The kids never quit. The kids really hit and I still think they're going to surprise some people. We can still hit with anybody. Maybe we made all of our mistakes in one game."

The victory ran Fruitport's record to 2-0 this season and helped to improve Holden's career record at the school to an impressive 56-9. And the Trojan coach quickly pointed to his team's passing game plan as the difference.

"We have always had the pass in our game plan," he said. "We threw well against Harbor last year, so we tried again this year. When Benton Harbor put 11 men on the line, we knew we had to go to the air and do it quickly."

Fullback James Larson, who rushed for 200 yards in Fruitport's opening-game win over Coopersville, was held to just 28 yards in 14 carries.

Fullback Greg Hopkins scored the other Benton Harbor touchdown on a 15-yard run in the first quarter. But Hopkins left the game with a knee injury shortly thereafter and will be lost for two to three weeks.

Lakeview Nips Bears

Accurate Passes Hurt St. Joe

By JOHN VANDEN HEED
Sports Editor
Lakeview used winning hands to deal St. Joseph an 18-16 setback in the Big Eight football opener for both squads Friday night at Dickinson Stadium.

The Spartans cashed in a standard seven of 11 passing with 68 yards. After leading 12-8, Lakeview added an insurance touchdown in the fourth quarter on a 13-run by David Haukedahl.

St. Joe finished off the scoring with just 1:54 left to play on a six-yard touchdown pass from quarterback Steve Ziebart to sophomore end Bryan Brown and a two-point PAT run by Wheeler. Doug Vernon ran for the Bears' first PAT.

"It was the little things that happened that hurt us," continued Muhlenkamp while recalling the Spartan touchdown pass after Sims had eluded a Bear tackler.

There was also the roughing the passer penalty that nullified an interception by Vernon and kept the first Lakeview scoring drive going, an obvious illegal procedure penalty on a Spartan scoring march that the referees didn't see and an onside kick by Lakeview which wasn't planned but worked.

"We came out smelling like a rose on that one," noted Fischer on the onside kick after Lakeview's last touchdown. "We don't have a kicker, so we just tried to kick it ugly."

It allowed Lakeview to retain the ball in the fourth quarter when time was important for the Bears. "We had to use our time outs to get the ball back," added Muhlenkamp.

While there were some little things which hurt St. Joe, there were also a couple of major mistakes which were costly. St. Joe fumbled the ball away once at Lakeview's 22. One of two pass interceptions Ziebart threw also led to a Spartan touchdown.

St. Joe also failed to cash in on an opportunity inside the Lakeview 30 in the third quarter while leading 8-6. "We stalled with four pass incompletions in a row," recalled Muhlenkamp. "That was the big series."

Lakeview, now 2-0, outgained St. Joe 288 yards to 254 yards, with Scott Cranford rushing for 52 yards and Proffitt 49. Dale Warren also had three pass receptions for 37 yards.

St. Joe got 146 yards through the air on 12 completions in 29 attempts, with Ziebart throwing all but one pass. Tight end Brian Hansen caught four passes for 45 yards, flanker Keene Taylor had three for 63 and fullback Wheeler three for 22.

Lakeview was the pre-season pick of conference coaches to win the Big Eight title, so Muhlenkamp was pleased with the Bears performance.

"If they are picked to win it, we must be a pretty close second," offered the Bear coach. "They've got the people, but we gave them all they wanted. I'm real proud of the kids."

St. Joe, now 1-1, goes on the road for the first time next Friday for another Big Eight game against Kalamazoo Central.

WASTED EFFORT BY VERNON: This pass interception and return by St. Joseph's Doug Vernon (17) Friday night at Dickinson Stadium against Battle Creek Lakeview didn't count because of a personal

Rams' Terrific Trio Is Winning Act

By JERRY DYKSTRA
Staff Sports Writer
SOUTH HAVEN — South Haven's Terrific Trio made some more beautiful music here Friday night.

The Rams' sweet-sounding threesome of Perry Palanca, Mike Jones and Shelby Gamble were right on key as South Haven enhanced its Wolverine title chances by drowning out arch-rival Plainwell 32-14.

The threesome accounted for all the Rams' scoring as Gary Stendle's charges chalked up their 11th straight win over two seasons, the longest winning streak in southwestern Michigan.

Palanca took care of the passing, Jones the catching and Gamble the running, and together they took care of the Trojans.

Palanca, a senior who is starting for his third season, was right on target as he hit on 11 of 17 passes for 177 yards. The Run signal-caller connected with fleet-footed Jones for seven passes for 84 yards and touchdowns of 13 and eight yards. Palanca also scored on a one-yard sneak. The Palanca-Jones combination now has accounted for 15 TD passes in 11 games over two years while Palanca has tossed 32 TD airds in his brilliant career.

Gamble was contained by the Trujano most of the game as he only picked up 39 yards over the first three periods. But the tailback was a sure bet in the last five minutes as he helped salt away the win with 127 yards and TD gallops of eight and 87 yards, that long-number call coming on the last play of the game. He ended with 166 yards in 15 totes.

"Palanca was really throwing the ball nice tonight... he was really hot," lauded Stendle. "And Jones just made some outstanding catches, too. Canonic (Jerry) also had some key catches (three for 69 yards)."

That slant pass to Jones really worked for a time until they adjusted to it. And then Gamble took care of things near the end.

"I tell you Plainwell really look it to us for awhile... but that didn't surprise me. We made some defensive adjustments at the half which helped step them."

Stendle was especially pleased at the way the Rams came back with a long drive after the Trojans pulled to 20-14 with 5:22 left in the game. South Haven went 58 yards in 10 plays, all on the ground, to assure its second straight league win of the season.

"I'm really proud at the way the kids came back there and punched it down their throats. They showed a lot of spirit then and really came together as a team... that's what it's all about."

Stendle saw his Rams pile up 273 yards in the second half, thanks to some crisp blocking by offensive line members Doug Braschleg, Jeff Loran and Roger Matthews. Halfback Gus Tindler also received praise from his coach for his yardage up the middle, 62 yards in 14 carries.

Plainwell, which shared the Wolverine crown with the Rams last year, is now 0-2 in the league and in a precarious position.

"We're just not a sound ball club... we lost a few more kids with injuries," moaned Trojan coach Jack Streidl. "We played without our game-breaker in Paul Sugas, who hurt his knee last week."

"This Jones kid really hurt us tonight. I think he's their best athlete. We tried about everything to stop him tonight... and he still was open."

The Palanca-Jones combo clicked for the first two scores and then a 13-yard play between the two led to the third score on the second play of the fourth period.

"We were in summer camp together, so we know each other pretty well," noted Jones, who is being heavily scouted by major colleges. "Perry calls a lot of automatics. He's the best passer I've seen."

Plainwell scored on the opening drive with quarterback Dave Schmitt sneaking over from the two and in the fourth on a two-yard run by Doug Haise. Haise led the losers with 73 yards rushing in 12 haps while Joe Perk picked up 63 yards but only five yards in the last half.

The Ram defense, anchored by Harold Shelton, stiffened in the last half, holding the Trojans to only 79 yards.

Gaels Capture Marathon Win

GALLEN — First-year coach Tony Yonto brought some of his father's defensive ideas with him to Galien this season.

And those ideas are quickly paying the Gaels rich dividends. Galien edged Hartford 6-0 in four overtimes before a standing-room-only crowd here Friday night. And it was the Gael defense which deserved much of the credit.

"The defense did a fantastic job," Yonto said. "It was just five-yard touchdown scamper in the fourth overtime. Hartford had been assessed a five-yard offside penalty just before the TD run."

"We got the offside penalty and that was it," Hartford coach Bob Teske lamented. "We could have been going at it all night."

The Red Arrow opener for both teams saw just eight combined first downs and 219 total yards. The two teams hit on just four of 35 passes, had five interceptions and lost six fumbles.

In the end it was the Gael defense which made the difference. Twice in the final six minutes, the Indians drove inside the Galien 10. Both times the Gaels halted the drives without a score.

In the second overtime, Hartford had a third down and goal at the two. But the Gaels forced and recovered a fumble on the next play.

Galien had a chance to win the game themselves in the second extra period. But Matt Kozel's field goal attempt was partially deflected and fell short.

"This guy (Yonto) has done a fantastic job at Galien," Teske said. "There's no ifs or buts about it. Obviously he has instilled a tremendous amount of confidence in the kids. They believe in what they're doing. They hit well and they pursue well."

Galien, now 2-0, travels to Watervliet next Friday. Hartford, 1-1, hosts Eau Claire.

Tall Cager Will Play For SMC

DOWAGIAC — Dennis Jordan, a 6-11 center, will play basketball for the Southwestern Michigan College Roadrunners this season.

Jordan is a transfer from Western Kentucky. He will join his former high school teammate, Joel Skibbe, at SMC. Both are from LaPorte.

SMC basketball coach Jim Tansey tried to recruit Jordan last year, but lost him to Western in August.

"For a while last year I thought we had really landed both Joel and Dennis," said Tansey. "But now that Dennis decided to play with SMC we should have good height underneath."

Another former LaPorte high school star has joined the ranks of the Roadrunners. Bret Uchele, a 6-5 guard-forward, has enrolled. He averaged 14.5 points per game for LaPorte last season.

JONES DIVE: Mike Jones of South Haven dives over for the Rams' first score in game against Plainwell Friday night at South Haven. Jones scored on a 13-

Lancers Rebound, Shut Out Eddies

Freer, Brister Standouts

Rebounding off a season opening defeat against St. Joseph last week, Lakeshore flexed its muscles Friday night by shutting out Edwardsburg 18-0 in its Blossomland conference opener on the Lancer gridiron.

The host Lancers received solid running from senior backs Paul Freer and Odell Brister, who combined their talents early in the second quarter to march the Lancers downfield 87 yards in 13 plays to draw first blood. Brister won the scoring honors by carrying the ball in over left tackle on a one-yarder.

Freer was the game's leading ground-gainer, chewing-up

130 yards in 17 carries. Brister added another 82 yards on 15 carries. "They're a couple of fine backs," commented on a quarterback option for the second Lancer tally in the last quarter, and sophomore quarterback Mike Mervenne ran the option 44 yards for the final score. "We hope to get Mervenne in a lot of games this year so he'll be a veteran for us next year," said Topping.

"We wanted to shut them out and score three times. That was our goal and that's what we achieved," he added.

"(Senior quarterback Dave) DeVoir did an excellent job running the option. The execution was flawless, but we're not real pleased with the offensive blocking. The line came off the ball real well at times, but at other times they were a little slow."

The Lancer defense held the Eddies to only 82 yards during the match. "Marc Florian played solid offense and defense," continued Topping. "His defensive tackling has really improved."

"Dave Goodwin, a junior cornerback, came up and hit well and had good tackles. Joe Campbell did well on defense also. Jamie Lingle, our monster back came up well on screens and options. One-on-one he's going to take his man out everytime."

The second Lancer scoring attack was launched deep within their own territory after the Eddies blew a fourth-and-one on the Lakeshore three on a mix-up on the hand-off.

Freer took the piaskin from the three on the first down and picked-up 12 yards and a first-down. On the ensuing play DeVoir kept the ball on the option and raced 28 yards to the 43, and handed-off to Brister who picked-up six more yards before being dragged to the ground.

Lawrence, now 0-2 and the loser of four straight over two seasons, was down 15-0 when it got its lone touchdown in the second quarter on a 41-yard run by Greg Staffen, who finished with 79 yards rushing.

Bridgman Defense Holds Off New Buffalo

BRIDGMAN — A stout defense gave Bridgman its eighth straight victory over New Buffalo in a Red Arrow opener for both squads here Friday night.

Bridgman yielded just seven first downs and 97 yards while beating the Bisons 14-6. The Bees, now 2-0 overall, have now yielded just six points this season.

Linebackers Joe Jones and Tony Rose and tackles Mike Murciek and Dave Skopek spearheaded the Bridgman defense.

On offense, Bob Weed and Bill

Moreland led the way behind the blocking of 245-pound lineman Phil Oul.

Weed scored a touchdown and added a PAT while gaining 39 yards in 17 carries. Moreland hit on four of eight passes for 63 yards, including a TD strike to Steve Reitz, who caught three passes overall for 55 yards.

Weed put Bridgman ahead for good in the second quarter with a three-yard touchdown run. It came right after teammate Murciek had knocked down a

Bolin Paces Panther Win

BERRIEN SPRINGS — Senior tailback Mark Bolin scored three touchdowns to power Watervliet to an 18-6 victory over Berrien Springs here Friday night in a Red Arrow encounter.

Bolin scored on runs of 18, eight minutes to play in the third quarter to bring the score to 12-6.

But a fumbled punt at its own 24 proved costly for Berrien, as Bolin's two-yard run in the final quarter sailed away the victory.

The Shamrocks, now 0-2 overall, were hurt by four lost fumbles and an interception. Watervliet also made four turnovers but on three of the turnovers the Shamrocks coughed back the ball on the first play on fumbles.

Freeman led the losers with 115 yards in six carries, including a 54 yarder to go with his 37-yard TD.

The Shamrocks were zero for eight in the passing department and were limited to 159 yards net offense by the tough Watervliet defense, paced by Schultz.

Watervliet, now 2-0 overall, saw Berrien come back on a 37-yard run by Ray Freeman with eight and two yards finished with 89 yards on 19 carries.

Steve Schultz also helped force the Panther ground game as he piled up 75 yards on 12

New Buffalo lateral and recovered the ball on the Bison three. New Buffalo had started the series on its own 38, but it got pushed back by two penalties and three losses amounting to 19 yards.

New Buffalo narrowed the count to 8-6 at halftime after a 31-yard TD scamper by Carl Davis.

Bridgman added its last TD with less than a minute remaining on the Moreland to Reitz pass. A 12-yard run by Weed helped set up the score.

"New Buffalo is a tough team," declared Bridgman coach Jerry Phanitis after the hard-fought game was over.

Roger Lajewski led New Buffalo rushers with 58 yards in 15 carries and Davis got 49 in nine attempts.

New Buffalo is now 0-2 on the season.

Holiday Inn, I-94 Ex. 28 & US-31,
Benton Harbor, Michigan
Monday, Sept. 19, 1977
HOURS 1 P.M. to 8:30 P.M.

Chicago, Ill., Sept. 17, 1977. Mr. A.C. Erickson will be back in Benton Harbor, Michigan again Monday, Sept. 19, 1977. Now is the time to act on this great opportunity. Every man and woman now losing hair should take advantage of this FREE CONSULTATION.

GUARANTEED

You will be given a written guarantee on a prorated basis from the beginning to the end. Naturally we could not give you such a guarantee if it didn't work.

CANT HELP

Male pattern baldness is the cause of a great majority of cases of baldness and excessive hair loss, for which no method is effective. Midwest/Ericksen Hair Specialists cannot help those who are slick bald after years of gradual hair loss.

But, if you are not already slick bald, how can you be sure what is actually raising your hair loss? Even if baldness seems to "run in the family," this is certainly no proof of the cause of your hair loss. Many conditions can cause hair loss. No matter which one is causing your hair loss, if you wait until you are slick bald and your hair roots are dead you are beyond help. So, if you still have hair on top of your head, and would like to stop hair loss and grow more hair, now is the time to do something about it before it's too late.

FREE CONSULTATION

Just take a few minutes of your time on Monday, Sept. 19, 1977 and go to the Holiday Inn, I-94 Exit 28 & U.S. 31 in Benton Harbor, Michigan between 1 p.m. and 8:30 p.m. and ask the Desk Clerk for A.C. Erickson's room number.

There is no charge or obligation...all consultations are private, you will not be embarrassed in any way.

Majors Makes Tennessee Debut

From ASSOCIATED PRESS
Tennessee's Johnny Majors tries to win his first game for his alma mater tonight while Oregon State's Craig Fertig tries to win his first game against his alma mater.

Majors' debut at Tennessee was ruined by California last week, by a 27-17 score. Tonight's opposition in football-mad Knoxville is Boston College, a 44-0 loser to Texas one week ago.

Fertig, a one-time Southern California quarterback, is in his second year as head coach. His first one was marred by a 36-0 embarrassment at the hands of USC and tonight's meeting finds the Trojans ranked second.

In other key night games eighth-ranked Texas Tech entertains New Mexico, No. 15 Oklahoma State meets Arkansas in Little Rock and No. 19 Florida visits Rice.

In the afternoon, Michigan, the new No. 1 team, hosts Duke, third-ranked Notre Dame meets Mississippi in Jackson, No. 4 Alabama visits Nebraska and No. 5 Oklahoma hosts Utah.

Rounding out the Top Ten, Minnesota is at No. 6 Ohio State, No. 7 Texas A&M meets Virginia Tech and No. 9 Houston is at No. 10 Penn State.

In the Second Ten, West Virginia visits No. 11 Maryland, Kent State is at No. 12 Colorado, Kansas visits No. 14 UCLA, William and Mary is at No. 16 Pittsburgh, Clemson takes on No. 17 Georgia and Virginia is at No. 18 Texas.

Mississippi State, the nation's No. 13 team, and No. 20 Brigham Young have the weekend off.

Boston College will be somewhat familiar to Majors who beat the Eagles in 1973 and 1974 when he coached at Pitt.

Meanwhile, Southern Cal starts its campaign for another shot at the Rose Bowl with a Pacific-8 Conference clash against Oregon State.

The rest of the Saturday night schedule finds Cornell at Penn, Tennessee State at Alabama A&M, Alcorn State at Alabama State, Tennessee-Chattanooga at Appalachian State, Western Carolina at The Citadel, East Tennessee State at Furman, Miami, Fla. at Georgia Tech, Cincinnati at Louisville, West Texas State at McNeese State, Utah State at Memphis State, Arkansas State at Northwestern Louisiana, Miami, Ohio at South Carolina and Texas Southern at Southern U.

Blair's Bat Helps NY Edge Detroit

DETROIT (AP) — Paul Blair, one of the finest defensive outfielders in this era of baseball, was a bit out of his element Friday night.

He won an important game with his bat instead of his glove as the New York Yankees defeated the Detroit Tigers 5-1 to stay 2½ games ahead of second-place Baltimore in the American League East pennant race.

"Hitting a game-winning home run in that situation — that's just not me," said Blair, the 13-year Baltimore Oriole who switched uniforms this season after years of .218 and .197 at the plate. For New York, however, he's 42-for-142 for a .296 average and 24 runs-batted-in.

The Yankees rallied for four runs in the eighth inning, two on a double by Lou Piniella to knot the score 3-3 off Fernando Arroyo (7-17) and two on Blair's homer that followed off Bruce Taylor.

Uncharacteristically, Blair — playing center field in place of injured Mickey Rivers — committed an error in the ninth inning to let in the Tigers' fourth run when he bobbled Aurelio Rodriguez' double.

Don Gullett then got pinch hitter Bob Adams to end the game with a ground out. It gave Blair a lot of ballgames and I feel it prolonged my career."

However, "When you negotiate your contract they don't say anything about your glove. It's what you did with a bat that counts."

Blair has no particular empathy for the Orioles in their bid to overtake the Yankees.

"I have no hard feelings for the city or people of Baltimore," he said. "But I'm glad to get out of there."

But, he added, "If New York and Boston played up to their capabilities this year you wouldn't be hearing all this stuff about what a great job Baltimore is doing."

The Tigers bunched Gullett for two runs in the first inning. Ron LeFlore doubled and trotted home ahead of Rusty Staub's 20th homer and 92 RBI. John Weekes singled in a Detroit run in the fourth.

Milt May got a slick bunt single with two outs in the ninth, racing home on Rodriguez' double plus Blair's bobble. Gullett his sixth complete game in 20 starts as he raised his record to 12-4.

The teams were to meet again today, with righthander Dick Tidrow, 10-1, scheduled to pitch against Tiger leftlander Jim Crawford, 7-6.

New York's Billy Martin, who picked up victory No. 700 of his eight-year managerial career with Gullett's triumph, said Crawford "will have some right-handed thunder facing him tomorrow." Martin said he would use slugger Dave Kingman, just acquired on waivers from California, as designated hitter.

Tiger Manager Ralph Houk, meanwhile, said he would use his rookie shortstop-second base combination of Alan Trammell and "Sweet Lou" Whitaker in their first starts at Tiger Stadium.

The Yankees, who got an RBI single from Chris Chambliss in the first inning, began their eighth inning rally with a single by Reggie Jackson. Graig Nettles singled him in third, then Piniella's double chased Arroyo. Right-handed hitting Blair greeted right-handed reliever Taylor with his fourth homer of the year, just over the left field fence.

"I've used my defense to keep me in the lineup," Blair said.

Wildcats Open SAC By Blanking Cards

BLOOMINGDALE — Defending SAC champion Marcellus opened conference play in impressive style by bombing Bloomingdale 47-0 here Friday night.

Marcellus, now 2-0 overall, rolled up a massive 486 yards in total offense.

Tackle Kevin Aven led Wildcat defenders with 14 tackles. Bloomingdale also turned the ball over seven times, with Marcellus getting pass interceptions from Russ Mason, Randy Small, Rimes and Tom Perry, plus fumble recoveries by Greg Zimmerman and the Park Twins, Larry and Terry.

Bloomingdale's deepest penetration was to the Marcellus 30, with the help of a pass interference penalty. The game had 195 yards in penalties.

Marcellus got 438 yards rushing with Rimes having 184 on 13 attempts and Wilson 103 on nine tries.

Marcellus was just as overwhelming on defense, where it still hasn't allowed a point this season. Bloomingdale, now 0-2, had just three first downs and 67 yards in to-

MA BELL THROWS SWITCH Update Buchanan System

BUCHANAN — Michigan Bell Telephone Co. put its new electronic switching system into use here today.

The system was added through a $2.3 million addition to the firm's office here at 119 Oak street.

The office will give Buchanan telephone customers services from "one of the most modern and sophisticated communications systems in the world," according to Wanda Shirley, manager of Bell's Niles office.

The planned switchover to the new equipment will not mean a disruption of service for Bell's Buchanan customers, according to Mrs. Shirley, nor will it require any changes in telephone numbers.

There will be, however, some changes in calling procedures, Mrs. Shirley said. In addition to requiring that all seven digits be dialed, Buchanan customers will be asked to dial 611 for telephone repair service; will hear a lower pitched dial tone, and will lose "double ring" service now in use for some phones.

Touch-tone phones and a variety of "custom calling features" will be offered to Buchanan customers for the first time, Mrs. Shirley said, because of the added facilities.

The new features include: — Call Waiting. A short tone informs a customer using the phone there is a second call waiting to be answered.

— Call Forwarding. Automatic transfer of incoming calls from one phone to another is now available.

— Three-way Calling. A customer can now add a third party to a conversation.

— Speed Calling. A customer can reach frequently called numbers by dialing two or three digit codes.

The new office will be known as a No. 2 electronic switching system (ESS), according to Bell. The Buchanan ESS is the 84th such system Bell has installed in the state, she added.

There are some 4,000 numbers in Buchanan's 695 and 697 exchanges, according to Mrs. Shirley.

Court Upholds Two Convictions

The Michigan Court of Appeals has upheld the convictions and subsequent prison terms of two former Benton Harbor men — one an armed robber and the other convicted of shooting a man.

Affirmed were the convictions of Jimmy Dale McIntosh, 27, and James Lee Alexander, 21. McIntosh in 1975 was sentenced to 30 to 60 years in prison by Berrien Circuit Judge Chester J. Byrns for assault with intent to murder, and Alexander in 1975 received a 5 to 25-year term from Judge John E. Hughes for armed robbery.

McIntosh was charged with shooting Albert Q. Thomas with a .22 caliber pistol Aug. 17, 1974, in the 1500 block of East Empire avenue, Benton township. Thomas was shot in the hip.

The appellate court denied McIntosh's claims that the prosecution did not use due diligence in trying to locate a witness and that he was denied effective assistance of counsel.

Appeals judges also ruled that Byrns did not err by instructing the jury on two lesser misdemeanor offenses.

Alexander was convicted of using a sawed-off rifle to rob Exam Johnston of about $20 and a watch July 23, 1974, at Johnston's auto sales in Benton township.

The appellate court denied all of Alexander's arguments for reversal, saying both the judge at the district court level and the prosecution acted according to the law.

Buchanan Feud Article 'Unfair'

BY STEVE MCQUOWN
Assistant State Editor

BUCHANAN — Buchanan Township Supervisor Kenneth Jones has criticized coverage by this newspaper of disputes between the board and a township resident, Fred Hankins.

Jones said he felt a Sept. 7 news article in this newspaper "was unfair" to the board and to Township Assessor Ivan Price.

"I'm not saying the article was in error, just unjust," Jones said yesterday in a telephone interview.

He was expanding on comments he made at the township's Tuesday night meeting about this newspaper's coverage.

The Sept. 7 news story related how Hankins had been ordered out of the township board's meeting after verbal clashes between Hankins and Jones over federal and state gun laws, a proposed township zoning ordinance and the township's assessor.

The article also related how Jones on that night had refused to read into the board's record an announcement by Hankins that the Level 1 assessor's certification of Price had been challenged at the state level by a petition signed by 40 township residents.

Hankins has alleged that Price made unfair property assessments.

The story included background about Price who was township supervisor for 29 years before resigning in February, 1976, to accept appointment as Berrien county drain commissioner.

He resigned that county post two days later when a $13,865 lien was filed by the U.S. Internal Revenue Service. The lien was later paid.

Price was hired as township assessor in January of this year. Jones said yesterday that "background about Mr. Price" had nothing to do with the decertification petitions.

"Why that (the IRS lien) was even brought in I don't understand. It's things like this make people not want to take part in government," Jones said.

At the Tuesday night board meeting, Jones said he told the audience that "To see a man who has given 29 years of his life to the service of the township smeared and downgraded turns my stomach."

Yesterday he added that "If one mistake can smear 29 years, it's not worth it."

He added that news accounts of disputes with Hankins "...made Fred Hankins look like he is always in the right and the local governing body wrong."

Real Estate Course Set For St. Joe

ANN ARBOR — An investment and taxation institute will be offered in St. Joseph Oct. 3-7 by the statewide U-M Real Estate Program, the University of Michigan has announced.

The institute, which will run Monday through Friday from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., will be held at Holiday Inn.

The institute involves the fundamentals of real estate brokerage as it applies to the sale of income-producing properties. It will teach the student how to structure a real estate transaction. The institute meets the suggested curriculum for the final 30 classroom hours of the Michigan Department of Licensing and Regulation requirements.

Advance registration for the institute is advised. Call (313) 764-5304 to register.

The Real Estate Program, now in its 31st year, offers courses for both experienced people and those new to or interested in the real estate field. The U-M Extension Service, the Graduate School of Business Administration and the Michigan Association of Realtors cooperate in offering the state-certified courses, which have been approved for the granting of "continuing education units" and which can lead to the respected U-M certificate in real estate.

For information on this institute and others scheduled this year at a variety of locations around the state, contact the Real Estate Program, University of Michigan Extension Service, 350, Smith Thayer, Ann Arbor.

Market Trading Is Slow

Supplies were rather light and trading was slow on the Benton Harbor market Friday. Apples attracted most of what interest was shown.

With the harvest season about two weeks ahead of normal, apples, grapes and late tomatoes are expected to be the principal commodities as the season moves into a normal October timetable.

JEROME HEADSPETH

THOMAS HEADSPETH

Murder Suspect Found In Closet; Brother Is Held

Benton Harbor police said Jerome Headspeth, 22, of 648 Green avenue, was arrested at the home of a brother Friday on an open charge of murder in connection with the Sept. 8 shooting death in Benton Harbor of Northern D. Williams, 30, of 157 Walnut avenue, Benton township.

Police said Headspeth's brother Thomas, 24, of 1850 Highland avenue, Benton township, also was arrested. He was looked for investigation of a charge of harboring a fugitive.

Det. Bill Elliott said Jerome Headspeth was found about 11:45 a.m. in a closet of the Thomas Headspeth apartment. The arrests were made by Benton Harbor police, assisted by Berrien sheriff's officers.

Jerome Headspeth later Friday demanded a preliminary examination when arraigned before Fifth District Judge Hugh Black on the murder charge. Bond was set at $50,000, and Headspeth was remanded to jail.

Thomas Headspeth was awaiting arraignment, according to sheriff's department records.

Jerome Headspeth was the second of two men sought in the slaying of Williams. Eddie L. Brown, 19, also of 648 Green, Benton Harbor, was arrested Sept. 9, when he voluntarily surrendered to Benton Harbor police. Both were charged in warrants.

Brown earlier demanded a preliminary examination on the open murder charge and was jailed when he failed to post a $50,000 bond.

Williams died in Mercy hospital after he was shot while running from two men, police said. The shooting occurred in a backyard off the 200 block of Fair avenue. Police said they found a .410-gauge shotgun.

Utility Officials Predict Blackouts Starting In '79

By MARTIN MERZER AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Local power blackouts and government-imposed restrictions on the use of electricity are likely to be common in some parts of the country by 1979 and in most areas by 1986, utility industry officials say.

The National Electric Reliability Council (NERC), a group formed in 1968 by U.S. power companies as a result of the Northeast blackout of 1965, this week released the most pessimistic report to date about the reliability of electricity in the near future.

The NERC report cites various restraints on recent attempts to improve electricity reliability — restraints such as governmental and environmental objections to the locations and designs of power plants, "lack of timely and adequate rate relief" and confusion over which fuel federal officials prefer for use by power companies.

"The continuation of these restraints will surely result in forced curtailments of electric power starting as early as 1979 and increasing in severity in the period beyond," the report said.

The curtailments would include blackouts rotated by neighborhood, reduced voltage throughout a power system and possibly "government-ordered conservation measures, NERC and federal officials said.

"We've been asking what could be done to minimize the problem of these shortages occurring as early as we say they might," C.E. Winn, chairman of the committee that prepared the report, said Friday.

"The fact is that there's very damn little that could be done in the short term."

Norton Savage, chief of power supply and reporting for the Federal Power Commission, said the FPC agrees with the industry report.

"The only real difference between us and them is that they see problems beginning in 1979," Savage said. "We don't see any problems until 1981. And by 1986, if some nuclear generating units don't come into service as planned, there will be much bigger problems."

But the problems facing the utility industry almost surely won't be solved in time to prevent the blackouts, Savage and others said.

Delays between planning and construction of plants are increasing instead of decreasing, there is confusion as to which fuel to use and how to comply with environmental standards, and it is getting more difficult to predict what the future power demands will be, they say.

Savage said: "The only thing we might have going for us is conservation. We need to see what kind of dent can be made in the demand for electricity by possible developments in conservation — either voluntary or forced by higher rates or simply by mandates by the state governments or federal governments."

A reserve of 30 per cent more power than is needed during peak times is considered the industry standard. But the two industry groups and the FPC agree that utilities in most of the country will see their reserves fall well below the 20 per cent figure by 1986.

In addition, the FPC and NERC believe that Illinois and parts of Wisconsin and Missouri will fall below the standard by 1979 and most of the Southeast will fall below the standard by 1981.

Charges of selling to an intoxicated person; intoxicated person consuming; and intoxicated person loitering, against James M. Reynolds, owner of The Gas Light, 104-108 Park Place, Dowagiac, were dismissed by the commission, the spokesman said.

Big Plant Planned For U.P.

IRON MOUNTAIN, Mich. (AP) — A new $250 million paper mill will be built here, providing jobs for up to 700 persons, says Champion International Corp. of Stamford, Conn.

In announcing the plans Friday, the company said the plant would be in operation by 1983. It is planned on a 2,000-acre site along the Menominee River about five miles south of Iron Mountain near the Michigan-Wisconsin border.

Champion said it owns about 400,000 acres of timberland scattered across Michigan's Upper Peninsula, which it will use to produce pulp and paper at the mill.

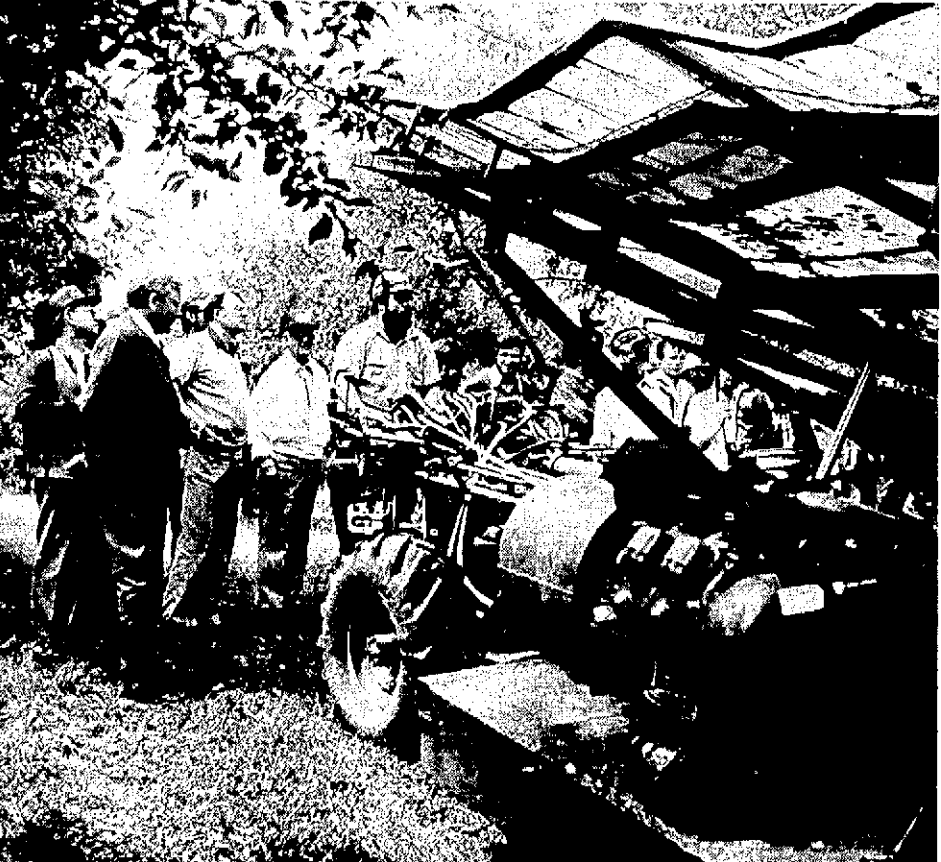

The plant initially would employ 400 with a payroll of more than $8 million. The facility eventually would be expanded, creating 300 more jobs, said George Wachter, vice president for corporate engineering.

Wachter said the firm, one of the nation's largest paper manufacturers, has lease options on 1,400 acres and hopes to complete acquisition by November.

Send the question, on a postcard, to "ASK," Family Weekly, 641 Lexington Ave., New York, N.Y. 10022. We'll pay $5 for published questions. Sorry, we can't answer others.

FOR FRAN VOORDE, White House director of scheduling
How many invitations does the President receive each week? What percentage does he decline, and what induces him to accept? — C.H., Little Rock, Ark.

● President Carter receives an average of 1,000 written invitations per week. Because of the large number, most must be declined. Although the tremendous volume of national and international issues crossing his desk precludes his being away from Washington very often, he does like to participate in events that give him an opportunity to have personal dialogue with the American people whenever possible.

FOR SEN. LOWELL WEICKER (R.-Conn.)

How much weight does your title of Senator carry when you travel? — B.R., Dubuque, Iowa

● My travels abroad have been personal in nature and, as such, were made at personal expense without formality. Though I don't try to capitalize on my position as a Senator, some people recognizing me go out of their way to be kind. Other people go out of their way to be rude. Vive la Liberté.

FOR ROBERT GOULET, singer
I've heard that you collect frogs. True or false? — S.O., Redondo Beach, Calif.

● True. But they are not living frogs. They're my good-luck charms and security blanket. I'm never without them. My collection of over 1,000 is always with me. My frogs are made of gold, silver, crystal, teak, metal and jade. I've even had them embroidered on my shirts. My favorite is a four-piece frog band, exquisitely carved out of jade. It's hard to assess my collection's worth — its sentimental value is priceless. By the way, I also collect antique sword canes.

FOR LYNN REDGRAVE, cohost of NBC-TV's Not For Women Only

How old were you when you started dating? — C.J., New London, N.H.

● As I went to an all-girls school in London — where it was impossible to meet the opposite sex — I started late, in my advanced teens. The only contact I had with boys was with brothers of my friends, and one rarely likes the brothers of one's friends. They treated me the way my own brother did — shabbily. Also, at 15 or 16, I hated boys my own age. I preferred grown men who, naturally, thought of me as a babe.

FOR PHYLLIS DILLER, comedienne
Comics are supposed to be outspoken, but was there ever a time when your words stuck in your throat? — G.J., Daytona Beach, Fla.

● I remember it well. Once, the magician who sometimes opens my act was getting a polibelly. I wanted to tell him about it but just couldn't get up the courage. Also, since I have so many weaknesses myself, it could have been a question of who casts the first stone. So I took the coward's way out. I gave him a book called Did You Ever See a Fat Squirrel? It completely changed his way of life as well as his eating habits.

FOR THOMAS J. FITZGERALD, president, New York Racing Association

Is it possible to name a horse after a living person? — L.B., Albany, N.Y.

● Only if the owner has an affidavit from the namesake giving permission. Naming a horse is not a simple matter. The Jockey Club (which approves names of thoroughbreds) limits the name to 18 letters. Trade names and commercial slogans are barred. One can't name a horse after another until 15 years after the death of the original. Profane or suggestive names are prohibited. In short, good and inventive taste is the criterion.

FOR JACQUES BELLINI, designer
Give me a rundown on our worst-dressed stars. — W.P., Kenosha, Wis.

● Liz Taylor should unload all those Mideast caftans, then go on a strict diet. Sylvester Stallone ought to invest in a couple of ties. Streisand ruins her gorgeous shape with awful clothes (wish she'd throw them all in the incinerator). Why doesn't Bianca Jagger stop listening to others and look in the mirror? She'd then see trend-setting is not always a good idea. Faye Dunaway should try to emulate her onscreen image offscreen.

FOR STELLA PARTON, country singer and songwriter
Are you related to Dolly Parton? — J.L., Flat, Mich.

● I'm her younger sister — the sixth of 12 children. (Five of us are in the singing and songwriting business, our mom composes and a grandfather is a preacher and music teacher.) Dolly was my inspiration, but she never helped me with my career. Neither of us wanted it that way. I was determined to get where I could on my own. Right now, I'm touring with my own band, The Playboys, which is Freddy Fender's old backup group.

FOR THE "ASK THEM YOURSELF" EDITOR
Can you find out how long-married actresses hold their men? — H.M., Aubury, N.J.

● Jean Stapleton, Mrs. William Putch since 1957, says: "We didn't give up our individuality when we got married. I have great love and respect for Bill, but I don't own him." Nancy Walker's secret to her 25 years with David Craig (right): "Your husband is another human being. Marriage is not moonlighting. It's a full-time job." Florence Henderson, Mrs. Ira Bernstein for 20 years, says: "Keep growing. Keep up with your husband and the times. Communicate. Don't try to be what you're not."

FOR IRVING WALLACE, author of The R Document
As a writer of sexy books, weren't you concerned with any possible effect they might have on your children? — S.M., Medford, Ore.

● In 1959, when times were hard and I had just finished the first draft of The Chapman Report, my first book, I showed the manuscript to my wife Sylvia and asked for her opinion. After reading one spicy chapter, she said, "But think of the children." I told her, "But I am thinking of them. If that episode helps the book sell a million copies, the children will be able to eat and live well." Does that answer your question?

PRO AND CON Should Air Bags Be Required in Cars?

PRO Brock Adams, Secretary of Transportation

First, let me clear up a common misconception: the air-bag system is not the only automobile safety-restraint system available. There also is an automatic safety-belt system that wraps around the occupant when the doors are closed. The facts make an overwhelming case for automatic restraints. Every year more than 47,000 persons die as a result of automobile accidents. A restraint system on all cars could save an estimated 9,000 lives annually. The need is obvious, and the cost is small when compared to the benefits. That's why on June 30 I ordered that either automatic restraint system be phased into new-car production, beginning with full-size cars in model year 1981 and for all cars in and after model year 1984.

CON Sen. Robert F. Griffin (R.-Mich.)

While Secretary Adams leads us to believe we will have a choice of passive restraints, as a practical matter it appears that only air bags will meet mandated standards. Not only are they expensive — some $300 initially and up to $600 to replace an air bag deployed even in a parking-lot bump — but they often malfunction. Since air bags are useless unless a crash is head-on, belts will still be needed. Lap and shoulder belts, already in all U.S. cars, are the best safety system we have. Adams's own figures show 13,300 lives could be saved yearly if only 70 percent of us buckled up — 19,000 if we all wore belts. Thus the air-bag order is a classic example of Big Brother cramming another costly pill down consumers' throats.

ED ASNER: DEDICATED FAMILY MAN, COMPLEX AND TROUBLED ACTOR

Television's Lou Grant is a real-life nit-picker who seeks perfection in his work and complete involvement in domestic chores at home.

By Peer J. Oppenheimer

Ed Asner is one of the most instantly recognized people on television. The lovable, irascible Lou Grant of the late Mary Tyler Moore Show now is beginning his own series, and one cannot help wonder, with such fame and fortune, why this thoughtful and complex man is intensely troubled by his career and his personal life.

Co-workers, critics and audiences alike always have been impressed by his ability as an actor, yet Asner has been unable to overcome a stigma associated with most television performers: Even after winning four Emmys — three for The Mary Tyler Moore Show and one for his portrayal of the harsh German immigrant in Rich Man, Poor Man — film producers still refuse to use him for major roles.

Despite a widely varied background in acting, from Shakespeare to contemporary, from the highly dramatic to slapstick, he feels denied. Not many months ago, Asner complained, "I'm a lion on TV, but I have to sweat to get into features. George Roy Hill rejected me for two of his films. The Sling and the Shotgun. And I don't even know how many other parts I've lost because I am considered a TV man. The producers feel that when I come on the screen, the audience will say, 'Ah, there's Lou Grant.'"

Has this attitude made him bitter? "Until a year ago, yes, I was bitter," he says. "Now I realize that I've had a chance to do plenty of good work on TV — not just on The MTM Show, but in the free-lance area as well. Some of the characters I've played on TV in recent months, particularly in Movies of the Week and mini-series like Rich Man, Poor Man. I never would have been able to do in movies. I just don't want to do second-rate movies anymore." Asner was probably thinking of several whose value he sums up by saying, "They weren't released — they escaped."

To prepare himself for his new series, Lou Grant, he has shed 35 pounds. "I lost the weight by going on a liquid protein diet. I felt I would go better with the new part. The battle now is to keep it off."

Asner has always been a workaholic. He puts in at least 12-hour days taping the new series. When he manages to get away, he stays home in posh Bel-Air with his wife of 18 years, the former Nancy Sykes, their three children, 14-year-old twins, Liza and Matthew, and Kate, 10, as well as an assortment of parakeets, fish, dogs, cats and mice.

"Even when I did The MTM Show, I didn't devote enough time to my family," Asner laments. "I berated myself then. I felt terrible. But I didn't change then, and my time at home is even more restricted today. Yet while there really isn't much I can do about it, I don't feel as bad as I used to. When I am at home today I can give of myself more freely. It all depends on me, in your heart, and my heart is in a good state with my family now. I realize how much I love my family, what they mean to me. I did a pretty big flip-flop."

"I can't even say that my problems were caused by my work or lack of time," he continues. "They were based on my inability to communicate and be as free as I am now. I was afraid to let go. I always kept close watch on my thoughts, which were as restrictive as the boundaries in old medieval maps beyond which monsters were supposed to lurk. I feared that if I went too far into my own self, I would discover monsters. Fortunately, I realized that I was losing out on loving and caring."

Just what did he mean by monsters within himself? "Before, I wouldn't let myself go. I could be an actor but not as a person because I didn't know what lay underneath. Finally, I reached a crisis where I either had to learn to give or my family life would be torn apart. When I did work it out, my marriage became stronger and so did my relationship with my children — although that's still not what I would like it to be." All along, Nancy did her best to keep the household functioning normally.

According to Nancy, "Ed is busier than ever, but he is making a more valuable contribution with his time with us than before, when he tended to separate his career and home life so completely that he wouldn't even talk about his work."

"I, in turn, did the same thing as a result. I wouldn't burden him with problems of taking care of the children and running the home. It came down to a lack of communication on both of our parts. Ed and I, both — and separately — discussed the problem with a therapist, who was very helpful. I would recommend it to anyone. We have all learned to exchange ideas and views, including the children, and it's terrific. Now Ed draws us into his life away from the house. And the children love it."

"We feel part of what he is doing, and on weekends we try to do something alone with the kids, even if it is only a dinner out and a movie."

Asner is the youngest of five children. He was born in Kansas City, Kan., November 15, 1929, into an Orthodox Jewish family. His father was in the scrap-iron business. Asner grew up in a section called The Bottoms, close to a packing house. From his room he could see the workers, covered with blood, eating their lunches. "They had tours of the packing house so visitors could watch the Sharing the little time he has off the set with daughter Kate and son Matthew.

slaughter," he remembers, "and often the neighborhood kids were allowed to hit the cows over the head with a hammer."

When he was in the second grade, his family moved to a better part of town so he "could enjoy the benefits of suburbia." Instead of making life easier, the move made him neurotic. When he started dating Nancy, who isn't Jewish, she complained that he talked about nothing but his Jewishness. "Mine was a closely centered family, very aware of our religion as well as of prejudices," Asner recalls. "Yet there was also a certain amount of arrogance — we shilly-shallyed with words and called it pride."

"My parents were immigrants, but my father made good in business. He was proud of that, and I was proud of him. I thought I had the strongest brothers and the prettiest, smartest sisters."

Asner is now mildly religious. When he married Nancy, she agreed to have their children raised in the Jewish faith. "They are aware that they have two bloods, that they are 'halfures,'" Asner says.

A problem the Asners didn't anticipate was having twins. "We tried so hard to make them perform as individuals that we may have lost more than we gained," Asner observes. "We worked against twinning. One being a boy, the other a girl, made it simpler, of course, like having them wear different clothes. Later we sent them to different schools. I think we lost a lot of fun we should have had."

"I also went overboard trying to be fair. This one gets six cents, the other one gets six cents. Always too much attention to little things. That has been a problem with me all my life — picking up sticks rather than driving them into the ground to create trees."

Asner's nit-picking dates back to his upbringing. "I wasn't taught it; I just came around to it. I can remember my dad's scrap-iron yard, and how it annoyed me.

The ground was littered with bits of glass, iron, nails, all kinds of junk. It was up to me to clean it up, put everything in its proper place. That's what I still do at my own home. I'm nearly neurotic about it."

It's not surprising that Asner has difficulty relaxing even when he has time. "The last vacation I took? Let's see — I think two years ago we spent Christmas in Hawaii."

When he has free time, he likes sleeping late, chauffeuring his kids around, jogging and occasionally brushing his two dogs. He's an altogether domestic man.

In 1953, after a two-year hitch in the Army (he was trained as a radio repairman, but was mostly involved in coaching a basketball team in France), he returned to Chicago. There he joined the Playwright's Theater Club and found himself in the heady company of Elaine May, Alan Arkin, Shelley Berman and Mike Nichols.

To help support himself, Asner took a variety of jobs around the Chicago area, including cab driver, auto-plant spot polisher, shoe salesman, TV advertising salesman, encyclopedia salesman, packing-machine operator and hooker-helper. "That's not what it sounds like," Asner says with a grin. "I worked in a steel mill in Gary, Ind., and helped the man who hooked the pots to the overhead cranes."

Then followed Off-Broadway, Broadway and Shakespeare festivals. Finally, in 1961, as a well-seasoned veteran, Asner and Nancy left for Hollywood, where he soon became one of TV's most-in-demand actors but appeared in a dozen unsatisfying films, too.

Now, after 16 years in California and with a TV series of his own, Asner feels he is closer to achieving both the professional and personal satisfaction he has craved.

But the nit-picking will probably continue. It is a part of Ed Asner to probe the meaning of his life and career. The search and discoveries have often troubled him, but they have uplifted him as well.

FOOTBALL'S MOST COURAGEOUS COMEBACK

garded by pro scouts. He lacked the speed of other backs and at 5'9" was considered small for a pro. He was drafted in the 16th round and even then there were whispers that Art Rooney, owner of the Steelers, took him because he was partial to Irish lads from Notre Dame.

Bleier was a little-used substitute in his rookie season of 1968. He then was drafted and a year later was serving with the infantry in Vietnam. His platoon was attacked by a large force of North Vietnamese, and he was hit in the left thigh by small-arms fire. Shortly afterward, a grenade exploded right at his feet, and shrapnel was blown into both his legs and shattered several bones in his right foot.

A GI from another platoon volun-

After having been wounded in both legs in Vietnam combat, doctors repeatedly told Rocky Bleier that he would never play again. Last year the Pittsburgh Steeler rushed for 1,000 yards.

By Barry Abramson

One doctor told him, "You're going to be a cripple. You're going to spend the rest of your life with a limp." A second doctor thought he had a chance to walk again some day without limping, but he was just as negative about his chances of playing football again. "It's impossible," he told him flatly.

But even the best specialists sometimes under-rate what can be accomplished by courage and fierce determination. Robert "Rocky" Bleier of the Pittsburgh Steelers, a running back who nearly lost both his life and his leg in Vietnam and was discharged with a 40-percent disability rating, not only returned to professional football but is a much improved player as well. He played a key role in Pittsburgh's two successive Super Bowl championships and last season attained the National Football League's symbol of excellence by rushing for more than 1,000 yards for the first time in his career. He also had his best year as a receiver, catching 24 passes.

The 31-year-old Steeler is a native of Appleton, Wis., the son of devoted, thrifty parents who worked 16 hours a day, seven days a week, running Bob Bleier's Bar. Bleier learned early how to cope with adversity. He was a schoolboy star in football and basketball when he came down with a bone disease. He was told he'd have to stay out of sports for several years, but, within a year, he made his way back to the school team. He played on championship teams at Xavier High and Notre Dame, and captained the Irish in his senior year. Despite his achievements, he was not highly re-teered to carry him to an evacuation helicopter two miles away. In his book, Fighting Back, Bleier pays tribute to this soldier: "I never knew his name, and I don't think he ever knew mine.... I was white, this guy was black. We had each traveled thousands of miles to meet in a jungle. After that night, I would never see him again.... Yet here he was, offering to pick me up and help save my life. That's a special kind of love."

The GI got Bleier half-way to the helicopter when he fell and Bleier collapsed in pain. Stretcher-bearers finally got him into the crowded chopper.

At an aid station, fear was expressed that Bleier might have to lose his right foot to prevent gangrene. The fear proved unfounded, but after surgery Army doctors told him that his football career was finished.

The months following brought another operation, days and nights filled with agonizing pain and a difficult period of learning to walk on crutches. When he was discharged from the Army and went to the Steelers' training camp in 1970, his limp was so obvious that his teammates were shocked he even contemplated trying to return to a sport in which violent body contact is constant. Physical therapy to give his toes mobility had failed, and the Steelers' orthopedic surgeon

Mickey Palmer/F.C.S.

He describes his awesome struggle in his book, Fighting Back, which will be made into a film next year.

There are four good reasons to see your good neighbor agent.

When Don and Vicki Cooper of Roseburg, Oregon, bought insurance for their home from State Farm agent Ken Clark, one thing led to another.

"I liked the coverages and felt good about being with State Farm," says Don. "But most of all, I liked the way he treated Vicki and me. We could tell he had our interests at heart."

Later, the Coopers decided to make Ken their life insurance agent. And then, their auto agent, too.

"It's a great convenience to have one agent handling the family insurance," says Vicki.

"If anything should happen, it's nice to know that all I have to remember is one name."

"And when you call him, you get a fast response," adds Don. "You know he's there, and you know he's working for you."

Ken says, "Knowing that families like the Coopers are well taken care of is very satisfying.

It's the most rewarding part of my job." There's a State Farm agent like Ken Clark in your neighborhood.

Check your Yellow Pages. And if you need help with your life, health, homeowners or auto insurance, call today. You'll be talking to four of the best insurance agents around.

Like a good neighbor, State Farm is there.

confirmed the opinion of the Army doctors: "You've got to find another profession."

But Bleier refused to quit, even though an injury sustained in a practice session emphasized that his wartime ordeal made him more susceptible to typical football injuries than other players. "I wasn't just being foolishly stubborn," he says. "I had this dream of succeeding in pro football, and I tried hard to make it so that 10 years later I wouldn't ask myself, 'What if I'd been able to rehabilitate myself; what if I'd gotten into super condition? Could I have made the team?'"

Through the generosity of owner Rooney, who felt that a man who wins a Bronze Star and Purple Heart deserves extra consideration, Bleier was kept on the Steeler roster. He was placed on the injured reserve list at full pay, and the club paid for another operation. Then he put himself through a long period of what he calls "sustained masochism" — a physical-conditioning program in which he gave what one trainer calls "150 percent of himself." At 5:30 each morning he ran himself to the edge of exhaustion. He spent afternoons lifting weights and did sprints at night. With the help of Pittsburgh's trainers and outside physiologists, he developed exercises that gave him new muscle and increased his speed.

During his comeback years, Bleier first played on special teams and then operated primarily as a blocking back for the Steelers' great running back, Franco Harris. He has finally become Harris' coster as a ground gainer. "Rocky might not have the greatest ability, but he has the greatest desire, and it sure shows," says Harris.

Deeply religious, Bleier feels God played an important role in his comeback. He has said that his experience in Vietnam was God's way of giving him some adversity after providing him with such good fortune. He believes this adversity has made him a stronger and more determined person.

Fighting Back will be dramatized in a film next year. Producer Mautry Gable, who will make the movie, points out that the public is tired of the antihero theme. "People are anxious for a story about a real hero, a truly inspired person. That's Rocky Bleier."

'Enriched Flavor' breakthrough ends search for "low tar, good taste" cigarette.

LOW TAR-ENRICHED FLAVOR

For years, smokers had to choose between real tobacco flavor or low tar.

Until MERIT.

Until a breakthrough in tobacco science resulted in a way to boost natural tobacco flavor without the usual corresponding increase in tar.

The result was 'Enriched Flavor' tobacco.

MERIT and MERIT 100's were packed with this special tobacco. And taste-tested against a number of higher tar cigarettes.

Overall, smokers reported they liked the taste of both MERIT and MERIT 100's as much as the taste of the higher tar cigarettes tested.

Cigarettes having up to 60% more tar!

Only one cigarette has 'Enriched Flavor' tobacco.

HOW TO BE A SMART HOME FURNISHINGS SHOPPER

Here are the important basics that will help you get the decorating results you want.

By Rusalyn Abrevaya

You've heard the one about the couple who bought a terrific sofa on sale — then discovered that it didn't mesh with their furnishings and wouldn't fit through the doorway. Obviously, planning ahead for your furniture purchases is extremely important. Here's how to begin.

Master Check List

Take an inventory of your rooms, listing major pieces as well as accessories. Leave space for measurements. If you're planning to replace a piece in approximately the same size, simply measure it. If you desire to increase the size, measure the floor area in which it will stand, and remember to measure the doorways through which it will be delivered.

Budget Plan

Settle on your priorities: Is it more important to get an upholstered piece or to buy new mattresses? Can you afford both? If you decide to buy on credit, consider your monthly obligations — if mortgage payments, cost of utilities and other monthly obligations are more than 60 percent of your salary, it's best to hold off on any new debts. You might emulate some families who put money away in a special savings account. Or, instead of exchanging gifts on special occasions, your family can contribute to a "furniture fund."

Money-Saving Ideas

Wait and watch for sales. Furniture stores have sales during slack seasons — usually January, February and August. Individual stores and outlets, however, may hold special sales throughout the year. And, if you have a charge account at a department store, it's customary for you to be notified about sales before the general public. You may save from 10 to 40 percent on clearance and inventory sales.

Check out floor samples, discontinued items and seconds. There are specialty stores that deal exclusively in seconds. Consult your Yellow Pages. Used or slightly used furniture of good quality also can be a good buy. This furniture is available at thrift shops and at sales from model homes or condominiums. It also is listed in newspaper want-ads. Inspect carefully before purchasing.

Consider unfinished furniture. If you have the skill to paint or varnish, it can provide savings in furnishing a den or children's rooms. Warehouse stores are a fairly new concept in which customers can select top-brand furniture at substantial savings but are responsible for delivery.

Buying Tips

When selecting upholstery, a tightly woven fabric in a medium shade will wear the best and show soil the least. Examine a swatch under daylight and lamp light. At home, if you cup hands over eyes, binocular-style, you'll get an idea of how the swatch will look over a large area. Check for sturdiness and comfort of upholstered pieces.

When buying carpeting, always get a sample of your purchase. On delivery, bend back both sample and carpet to be sure that density and depth of pile are the same and that you are getting the carpet you selected.

When available, use the services of an in-store decorator, who will help you coordinate your room settings.

Read labels. A label should indicate the fabric content of upholstered goods, the type of wood construction of furniture pieces and how to maintain your purchase. You also should get a warranty, which should be read and understood before you buy.

Two Common Health Problems

ACHING BACK

No one has a "backbone." What we have is a chain of 24 small bones down the middle of the back. They resemble little square doughnuts piled one atop the other in a slight S-curve. In the tube formed by the doughnut holes lies the spinal cord, and nerves for pain and motion branch off from it. Each bone in the chain, called the vertebra, has muscles attached to it that hold the bones in place and permit movement of the spine. When the muscles work correctly, the spine can bend a bit in any direction. But if anything disturbs the muscle balance, the result is an aching back.

Muscle spasm is a common cause of backache. Spasm causes pain, which, in turn, causes spasm. So a vicious cycle is set up. Sometimes the spinal nerves in the neck are affected; other times the pain may be in the hips or legs.

Sudden unaccustomed movements are a common trigger. So is the improper use of the back in lifting. Bend the knees and use them; don't just straighten the back. Nervousness, anger and weak stomach muscles can also set off a backache.

Treatment often attempts to reduce muscle spasm. Hot packs are helpful as is aspirin, which reduces inflammation. Muscle relaxants are frequently prescribed, and sometimes doctors have to arrange for traction. Weights are attached to the head and feet of the hospitalized patient, so the body can be gently but steadily stretched a bit while lying down. Stretching takes the pressure off the nerves and bones and loosens up tight, cramped back muscles. In most cases, this treatment is enough, but a few backs end up in surgery.

Regardless of the cause, backache tends to recur if preventive measures aren't taken. Exercise is needed between episodes. Sit-ups are good, and toe touches are better. A little exercise every day may be needed for years, but that's a small price to pay for a nonaching back.

DANDRUFF

Those white flakes on your shoulders may put red spots on your skin. Dandruff flakes are tiny bits of dead skin shed by normal body wear-and-tear. The flakes are largely dried skin cells, but they contain skin oils and dead bacteria, too. These flakes are irritating to normal skin and can cause annoying rashes.

Dandruff rashes plague some body areas more than others. The primary target is the scalp, where dandruff can cause itching and festers. In infants, large areas of this sore, crusted scalp are called "cradle cap." Since infants lie flat the first six months, rashes develop over the back of the head, neck and shoulders where the flakes fall. When babies sit, the rashes attack the forehead and face as well. That's also where adults get dandruff rash.

Thickened crusted eyelids, scaly brows and lashes and red, teary eyes often come with the dandruff rash doctors call seborrheic dermatitis. Irritated by fallen flakes, the rash also appears in places that sweat a lot: armpits, groin, under the neck and breasts. In fact, the rash sometimes appears to cover the entire body, and it worsens in hot weather. Many people prickly after haircuts, when scalp scales are freed to fall over sensitive skin. These people should head for the showers.

Treatment of dandruff begins with the mechanical removal of scalp scales. A stiff brushing or fine combing to loosen dandruff should be followed by a simple detergent shampoo. Sometimes doctors suggest special medicated shampoos to break up scalp scales. Then a brush and detergent shampoo routine should follow.

The brush-and-shampoo routine should be used daily for at least a week. Since the treatment stirs up dandruff, the rash and red eyes sometimes worsen before getting better. But when the snowy ring around the collar disappears, so will the rashes on the skin.

THE SACRED SHROUD OF TURIN

By Robert Wilcox

This weekend, a group of experts meeting in London ponder the mysteries of a winding sheet that some scientists contend enfolded the body of Christ.

The most mysterious relic in Christendom is the ancient Shroud of Turin, Italy, a 14-foot piece of linen cloth with the front and back impressions of a crucified, whipped, "stabbed-in-the-side" and "crowned-with-thorns" man. According to tradition, it is the burial cloth of Christ.

The shroud is owned by the exiled monarchy of Italy, the House of Savoy, and has a documented history trailing back to 1354, when it surfaced in Europe as the prized possession of a former Crusader knight. Beyond that, a strong circumstantial case can be made that it existed as far back as first-century A.D. But, alas, an unbroken chain of documents is lacking.

This weekend, experts are meeting in London to prepare for a special exposition of the guarded relic which Church authorities have announced will occur next May in Turin. These experts hope to formulate recommendations for testing the relic. All of them are already convinced the shroud is authentic.

Scientific interest in the shroud began in 1898, when the first photographs were made. It was discovered that the images on the cloth's surface are exactly like photographic negatives. (The light and dark areas of the body are reversed.) But looking in his negative film plate (where the negative images would be reversed), the first photographer saw positive images. They showed the lifelike pictures of a dead body.

Robert Wilcox is the author of The Mysterious Deaths at Ann Arbor (Popular Library) and Shroud (Macmillan).

The image as it looks on the shroud (l.) and when the cloth is photographed (r.).

The discovery caused consternation. Cries of "miracle" came out of Turin. How could anyone, asked those who saw the negatives, put a photographic likeness of a dead man on a cloth prior to 1354. Photography — and the very concept of a negative — wouldn't be invented for another 500 years.

After the first photographs, the shroud was withdrawn from display, not to be seen for another 30 years. But in that time scientists studied the photographs with startling results.

The images were not painted. Examining blowups of the first photos, scientists couldn't find even a hint of brush strokes or paint. Art experts testified that the images follow no known style, and renowned artists trying to paint negatives that, when photographed, turned into recognizable positives failed miserably.

The images are definitely those of a corpse in rigor mortis. So precise is their anatomical realism, that separation of serum and cellular mass — a true characteristic of dried blood — is evident in almost every blood stain. Pathologists saw swelling around cuts and bruises. The first stages of decomposition are evident.

The scientist who spent the longest time studying the photos, Yves Delage, a member of the prestigious French Academy, reluctantly came to the following conclusions: The shroud had not wrapped a random crucifixion victim. The man in the shroud is severely lacerated about the head, suggesting the crown of thorns. He exhibits a gaping wound in the chest, such as a Roman lance might make. A swollen face and lash marks all over the body show that he was beaten and flogged as the New Testament says Jesus was. In addition, there is a large lacerated area on one side of the shoulders, indicating he had carried a heavy, rough beam.

Could the shroud be simply a clever fake, Delage asked himself, the product of a body mutilated to look like Jesus? No, he concluded. His reasoning: It's logical to assume that any forger would have stringently followed Christian depiction of Christ in making such a fake. Otherwise, Christians would have rejected it. But the shroud images deviate from Christian tradition:

- The nail holes are in the wrists, not the palms.
- The lacerations on the man's head show he wore a full "cap" of thorns rather than the traditional "Wreathlet."
- The man in the shroud is nude. Nowhere in traditional Christian art is Jesus naked as an adult.

In the late 1930's, following the first exhibitions of the shroud in this century, a Parisian anatomist, Pierre Barbet, published a book, Doctor at Calvary, detailing further findings: The nail holes in the wrists are in precisely the places a crucifier would have used during the era of Christ. Crucifying a corpse to which he had access, Barbet found that when the nails were placed in the palms — as is always shown in traditional Christian art — the weight of the hanging body caused the nails to rip through the hands.

Recently, a new theory has emerged. In essence, it suggests that some sort of burst of heat or light "scorched" or "photographed" the negative images onto the fibers. The theory's biggest supporters are those who have actually seen the cloth (of which I am one) and feel the images look most like marks that might be produced by briefly touching a hot iron to a sheet.

This interpretation lends itself to the supernatural, and working from it, many experts employ the following reasoning to demonstrate that the shroud provides evidence of the Resurrection. First, there is apparently no other case of a shroud with such body images. All that appears on other shrouds is a blood-stained mass of splashes and swirls due to bodily decomposition. Thus, the picture on the Shroud of Turin does not seem to have resulted from any normal chemical interaction.

The absence of such splashes means, then, that somehow the body got out of the shroud before decomposition, which, interestingly enough, is exactly what the New Testament says happened to Jesus' body. And evidence on the relic suggests that the body exited in some mysterious manner. The only natural way would be if someone unwrapped the shroud and took out the body. But certain facts preclude this. There are hundreds of blood stains all over the body. If they were wet, the body's removal would have left smudges on the shroud. Yet scientists who have studied the images of the cloths say the borders on many are so perfect that they look more like "pictures" of blood clots than absorbed stains. And if the blood stains had already dried, enmeshing themselves into the cloth's fibers, removal of the body would have ripped the cloth as well as the cloths.

To all the conjecture and mystery surrounding the ancient Shroud of Turin must be added the fascinating finding of Dr. Max Frei, an internationally acclaimed criminologist. When granted special permission in 1973 to examine the shroud, he found traces of 2,000-year-old pollen on the cloth — from Palestine.

A SKEPTIC'S VIEW

Dr. Paul Kurtz is chairman of the Committee for the Scientific Investigation of Claims of the Paranormal, a group of scholars who call themselves watchdogs for the real world and debunkers of fantasies. When questioned about the shroud, he commented: "I am doubtful about the claims of a supernatural event. The evidence is in no way conclusive. I do believe, however, that a miracle is involved — and that is, if I may paraphrase the Scottish philosopher David Hume, it is a continuing miracle to me that people in this age of modern science and education will continue to believe in miracles without sufficient evidence or proof."

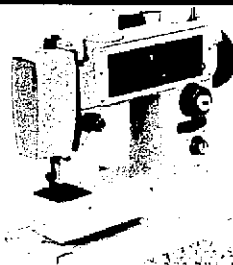

Dr. Kurtz, a professor of philosophy at the State University of New York at Buffalo, is the editor of the magazine The Humanist.

THIRTY-FIVE WAYS TO ECONOMIZE

Regardless of income, you can save hundreds of dollars on everyday living costs by following these simple tips.

By Burch and Betsy Day

FOOD

- Investing in a side of beef will probably save you money, but about 30 percent of what you get isn't usable. So, at 89¢ per pound, you're really paying $1.27 per pound for edible meat.
- If there's a 7¢ or more price spread between medium and large eggs, buy the mediums. Less than 7¢, stick to the large.
- Grade B is simply a question of appearance, not taste or nutrition. Use grade B eggs for cooking and baking; grade B vegetables in casseroles and stews.
- Comparison shop. It's a way to save up to $500 a year (for a family of four).

SUNDRIES

- Buy no-spoil items (cleaning supplies, paper products, etc.) on sale, and stock up.
- If you average a roll or more of paper towels per week, you're probably using them unnecessarily.
- Take soap cakes out of their wrappings and let them dry several weeks before using. They'll last much longer.
- You can get 15 or more shaves out of a single blade by keeping your razor in a covered jar filled with enough mineral oil to cover the head.

CARS

- The best time to trade in a car (unless it's a lemon) is early in the fourth year of ownership, while maintenance costs are still reasonable and trade-in value is relatively high.
- Optional equipment is mandatory for good resale value. Most options vary from area to area, so check with dealers.
- In terms of fuel, a 5,000 pound car is twice as expensive as a 2,500 pound car.
- Check your tire pressure regularly. Tires underinflated just 25 percent lose 1/5 of their useful life and will cost an extra $30 a year in gas.
- Idling more than half a minute is wasteful. Shut off the engine and start it again when you're ready to go.

PERSONAL FINANCE

- One-stop banking is often more expensive. Compare banks to get the best deal for services you use.
- Borrowing against money in your savings account is the least-expensive loan you can get.

- Considering major home improvements? The best deal you can get is an FHA Title 1 loan (available up to $10,000 through many banks).
- Make a list of your credit-card numbers and the phone numbers. There's usually no liability if you report loss or theft of the card within 24 hours.

UTILITIES

- Take showers instead of baths—seven gallons of water as opposed to 12.
- Buying a "high efficiency" model refrigerator can save $600 in electric bills over the life of the appliance.
- When boiling a big pot of water, start with hot tap water instead of cold.
- You'll use 1/3 more electricity cooking a roast you haven't defrosted.
- One-fifth of the heat is lost every time you open the oven door.
- A 40-watt fluorescent bulb costs less to use than a standard 100-watt bulb and provides 75 percent more light.
- In five years, storm windows pay for themselves in lower utility bills.

INSURANCE

- Always shop around. Identical plans can vary up to 100 percent in price.
- If your son has a "B" average or better in school, he qualifies for a good-student auto-insurance discount. That can be a yearly saving of $100.
- Stay away from policies that make you wait for benefits for such diseases as cancer and heart disease. In the interim, you can pay a fortune in medical bills.

HEALTH CARE

- Comparison shop for drugs—prices may vary 300 percent or more.
- Take advantage of your state department of health. Such services as free shots are often available to everyone.
- If you live near a dental school, you often can get work done for free or at a nominal cost. Students do the work, but always under a professor's supervision.

VACATIONS

- Never take a plane, train or bus trip of 200 miles or more without a travel agent's help. It doesn't cost you a cent but can save a lot in fares, hotels, etc.
- Taking a long bus trip? If you leave on Tuesday, you can ride for as little as half fare during certain months of the year.
- Stock up on film when it's on sale. It lasts almost indefinitely when stored in a cool spot. The best place to keep it is in the refrigerator—like the pros.

HOMES AND MOVING

- A two-story house pays in climates where heating bills run high. You'll lose 50 percent less heat through the roof.
- You can cut 50 percent off moving costs if you rent a truck or trailer and move yourself. You'll save on professional movers if you avoid the spring through Labor Day moving season.

Energy rip-off. "Were we directed from Washington when to sow and when to reap, we should soon want for bread," wrote Thomas Jefferson in 1821—an insight that applies in spades to today's energy problems. Washington would sock everybody with big new taxes and regulations that could force people to change their life-styles so they'll use less energy. But when it comes to increasing U.S. energy supplies, the politics keep putting new roadblocks in the way. Washington's mixed-up "solution" is to delay U.S. offshore drilling for oil and gas, go slow on nuclear power, put new restrictions on mining and using coal, and stress "conservation" to the extent that it could threaten the growth of the economy. Where are you, Mr. Jefferson, when we need you most?

Bureaucratic build-up. The concentration of power in Washington which drew Jefferson's barb couldn't hold a candle to today's. Currently, there are 18,000 staff members in Congress alone—more than twice as many as in 1960. The compensation of these aides? In the House, it's up sixfold since 1960.

"The poor thing was trying to keep up with the bureaucratic buildup."

Committee craze. Last time we looked, it was costing taxpayers $52 million to support 1,500 federal advisory committees. But 397 of them never met, and another 891 didn't produce a single report. The "President's Committee on the Environmental Merit Awards Program," established in 1972, neither met nor issued a report during its first four years of existence. Yet its term was extended in 1975. Maybe what's needed is a "Committee on Disbanding Committees"—with a one-year, non-renewable charter.

Spreading the wealth. That's exactly what's been happening in America over the last 50 years. In 1925, business owned 56 percent of the tangible assets in America; individuals and families, 30 percent; and government, 14 percent. But today, writes Dr. John Kendrick in a new study called The National Wealth of the United States, private citizens and families own 41 percent; business, 38 percent; and government, 21 percent.

PEOPLE QUIZ / By John E. Gibson

Can gloom distort our image of our body?
Are unsuccessful people most susceptible to depression?

WHO GETS THE BLUES AND WHY

TRUE OR FALSE?

1. Many people are subject to the "birthday blues," and it's not just because they're one year older.
2. We see a different face in the mirror when we get the blues.
3. Depression causes people to view things unrealistically.
4. People who don't make much money and never climb very high on the ladder of success are most subject to depression.
5. When you try to change the mood of someone who's depressed, instead of making him feel better, he's likely to make you feel worse.
6. How subject you are to the blues is likely to depend on whether you are a right or left "eye-looker."

ANSWERS

1. True. Studies at the MRC Clinical Psychiatry Unit in Chichester, England, have shown that a number of people experience depressive, downbeat feelings on their birthday, with morale often hitting the lowest ebb of the year. The studies also found the birthday blues syndrome to be associated with irrational and self-destructive impulses. It has been suggested that the birthday blues may be related to subconscious memories of a painful birth. Whatever the cause, it's noted, nevertheless, that for many people their birthday is one of the happiest days of the year.
2. True. In a Vanderbilt University study, research is cited showing that depression is likely to result in a distortion of body image, causing the person to see himself as unattractive—regardless of how good-looking he may be. This distortion was found to be true in 66 percent of the depressed persons studied.
3. True. University of Pennsylvania studies have shown that when a person is depressed he doesn't see things and situations as they actually are. He has an unrealistic attitude toward the future (it looks black), is confident that he will not solve his problems or achieve his goals and thinks he has little to look forward to except feeling miserable. Fortunately, most cases of depression disappear after a brief period of time.
4. False. Sociological studies at Britain's University of Surrey, which evaluated leading research on the subject, show that men and women in high-income brackets are most subject to depression. This finding was particularly true for manic-depressives (those who suffer a serious psychotic disorder involving peaks of elation and critical depression). The studies suggest that "the personality of some individuals that predisposes them toward successful striving may also predispose them toward depressive periods and that top-flight occupational status, and the upward social mobility that tends to accompany it, may be associated with the kinds of stress disposing people toward depression."

5. True. Studies at Indiana University demonstrate how easily depression is transferred from one person to another. Investigators found that you don't have to be around a depressed person long to start feeling the way he does: After subjects talked briefly with depressed persons, tests showed them to be significantly affected.

6. True. In studies at the University of Toledo, findings are cited showing that most people can be classified as either predominantly right or left eye-lookers. Right eye-lookers habitually look to the right when thinking; with left eye-lookers the reverse is true. It's been established that "looking to the right while thinking indicates a dominance of the left hemisphere of the brain, whereas looking left reflects a right-hemisphere dominance." Studies conducted by British scientists from the University of Oxford, University of Wales and University College have demonstrated that "the two hemispheres of the brain possess an essentially different emotional vision of the world," with left-hemisphere dominance contributing to a pleasant and optimistic view of life and right-hemisphere dominance increasing sensitivity to the less agreeable and more disappointing aspects of life, thus rendering the person prone to depression.

A Running Start

When psychiatrist Thaddeus Kostrubala's patients come to see him, instead of lying down on the couch they — and the doctor — are likely to go for an hour's jog in nearby Balboa Park. Kostrubala, chief of psychiatry at San Diego's Mercy Medical Center, has successfully used running as part of his therapy for dozens of patients. "It works best with moderately depressed patients but can be used with most patients, except for those with certain physical conditions," says Kostrubala. To illustrate what the running therapy does for the patient, Kostrubala outlines the stages most runners experience during an hour's run: "During the first 20 minutes you feel rotten, then at half an hour you get a feeling of elation, and after 40 to 60 minutes you may experience an altered state of perception." The most immediate effect on the patient, says Kostrubala, is elation and an amelioration of depression. Not all patients run with Kostrubala; some do it on their own or with one of the "running therapists" he is training. What do you have to do to become a running therapist? Well, for starters, you have to have completed 2 marathons.

Write On!

For a while it looked as though fine handwriting had gone the way of the medieval scribes. Now calligraphy appears to be enjoying a comeback. Sales of lettering pens are up 20% over the last 5 years, and the people buying them aren't those you'd expect. "For the most part they are the average guys in the street," says Arthur Astorino, manager of Educational Sales and Development for a company that produces two of the most popular lettering pens. Astorino thinks the rise of interest in calligraphy is "related to people's desire for personal identity, and lettering is something you can learn even if you don't have artistic talent." Another attraction is that calligraphy is easy on the pocketbook as well as the eye: you can buy everything you need to start for under $6. ## Sight Stealer

They call glaucoma the "sneak thief of sight" for a good reason. The most common variety of this second-leading cause of blindness works so slowly that the person isn't aware that his vision is getting worse — until it's too late. Dr. Steven M. Podos, ophthalmologist-in-chief at New York's Mt. Sinai Hospital, says, "Half the people with glaucoma don't even realize they have it. And because it's a silent blinder, glaucoma emphasizes the need for routine checkups." It's especially important to detect glaucoma as early as possible because, although medical treatment can halt the disease's progress, sight destroyed by glaucoma cannot be restored. Glau-coma generally strikes people over 35 (it can occur earlier) and often runs in families. If your doctor diagnoses glaucoma, it can be treated by drug therapy in the majority of cases, with surgery indicated in the remainder. So, now that your eyes have been opened, what better time to get a checkup — It's National Sight-saving Month. You even may be able to get a free screening in your area as part of the Glaucoma Alert launched by the National Society for the Prevention of Blindness. For more information, write: Glaucoma — Dept. FW, National Society for the Prevention of Blindness Inc., 79 Madison Ave., New York, N.Y. 10016.

Blackout Insurance

No part of the country is immune to power failures — whether they're caused by a hurricane in Florida or an ice storm in Michigan — but there's no reason for you to stay in the dark. Many families already have most of the equipment they need in an emergency — somewhere in the house. So your best insurance against inconveniences during power outages is to keep this equipment in one place and in working condition. The essential items to have on hand, says Katie McMullen of the Coleman Company, which has assisted in many disaster-relief efforts, are a flashlight, spare batteries, candles (with matches stored nearby) and a transistor radio. If your family enjoys camping or backpacking, such gear as a portable stove or a camp lantern should be stored with your emergency supplies rather than in the basement. Check your supplies every 2 months or so to make sure batteries and any other equipment are still working.

Zeroing In On Your Personality

Going around in circles doesn't have to be a waste of time — at least not when the circles are the ones you draw in a simple test that can give insight into your personality. All you have to do is draw 3 circles on a sheet of paper, which represent past, present and future. The circles can be of any size and in any arrangement. Finished? Now let Dr. Frederick Koenig, a sociology prof at Tulane Univ., who has administered the circle test to over 500 people, tell you how to interpret your drawing: "The first thing the test will tell you is, by the size of the circles, which is dominant to you — the past, present or future. Secondly, you'll find out how much relation you see between time periods by how much overlap there is between circles." Koenig says that the person who draws overlapping or touching circles believes that what he does today influences what happens tomorrow.

Quick Takes

There may be a lot more than toys in the attic. The Federal Reserve Bank of Boston estimates that Americans may be hoarding over $50 billion in cash, at least 40% of that in $100 bills. A bank spokesman says that while most hoards are under $1,000, caches of $5,000 or $10,000 are by no means rare. Patients admitted to hospitals on Fridays and Saturdays are likely to have longer — and therefore costlier — stays than patients admitted during the week, concludes a study by Blue Cross and Blue Shield of Michigan. The study reports that those admitted for surgery on weekends stayed an average of 4.1 days longer than other surgical cases and waited 5.1 days before undergoing their operations, compared to the delay of only 2.6 days for those admitted during the week.

Straight Answers About Drug Abuse

Drugs are one subject most parents would rather not talk about to their children — but if you don't, someone else probably will. Are you prepared to answer your teenager's questions about marijuana, alcohol and narcotics and to spot warning signals of drug abuse? Do you know which drugs cause physical dependence? Which have the highest immediate risk? There's a lot to learn about drugs, and to help meet the need the Dept. of Health, Education and Welfare has prepared a comprehensive booklet explaining many aspects of drug use and abuse. For a free copy of the booklet, Questions & Answers About Drug Abuse, send a postcard to the Consumer Information Center, Dept. 666E, Pueblo, Colo. 81009.
